ington, Oct. 1 (AP)—Legis- [illegible] levying on corporations an [illegible] profits tax of 25 to 50 per [illegible] raise $500,000,000 the first [illegible] voted finally today by [illegible] House. The action put Con- [illegible] one notch nearer an election [illegible] which leaders hoped to start [illegible] week-end.

The measure, put into present [illegible] form by a joint committee after House and Senate passed differing versions, now [illegible] to the Senate where approval, [illegible]ted tomorrow, would send it [illegible] White House. In addition to [illegible] sections it carries provisions designed to speed up armament production and furnish a system of insurance for the nation's fighting men.

It includes a 3.1 per cent boost in the normal corporation income tax and tax authorities estimated that it would yield $500,000,000 the first year and about $1,000,000,000 thereafter.

One Major Item Remains

When the tax bill clears the Senate, Congress will have only one major item on its calendar—a $1,469,993,636 defense appropriations measure which carries funds for the conscription program and expansion of the standing army. This has yet to be acted on by the Senate. Leaders expressed confidence it could be sent to the White House this week.

Defense speed up provisions of the tax bill:

Would permit manufacturers to deduct from their taxable income over a five-year period the entire cost of defense production facilities completed after June 10, 1940.

Suspends Profit Limitations

Would suspend present profit limitations on the manufacture of warships and military aircraft.

Moreover, the measure would set up a new government insurance system for draftees, National Guardsmen on active duty and other soldiers and sailors, permitting them to obtain policies up to $10,000 at low rates.

The 3.1 per cent corporation income tax increase would boost the normal rate from the present 20.9 to 24 per cent. Special lower rates for corporations with less than $25,000 net income would not be affected.

Under the excess profits tax [illegible] the first $5,000 of profits [illegible] be exempted with "cred- [illegible] based either on a concern's [illegible]st earnings or its invested capi- [illegible] also to be allowed. The mini- [illegible] credit would be eight per [illegible] of a corporation's currently [illegible]vested capital.

All earnings in excess of the exemption and credits would be taxable at: 25 per cent on the first $20,000, 30 per cent on the next [illegible] 35 per cent on the next [illegible] per cent on the next [illegible] per cent on the next [illegible] and 50 per cent on all [illegible]000.

COL. F. C. HARRINGTON

New London, Conn., Oct. 1 (AP)—Colonel F. C. Harrington, 53, who capped a brilliant army career by becoming head of vast Works Projects Administration, died last night at the Lawrence and M[illegible]morial Associated Hospitals.

Suffering from an intestinal [illegible] struction, Harrington under[illegible] an operation September 23 [illegible] apparently was on the road to [illegible] covery until Sunday when his [illegible] dition became critical.

Spangenberg Gets 10-20 Year Term

Lester Spangenberg, 31, of 128 Downs street was sentenced to a term of from 10 to 20 years at hard labor in Clinton State prison at Dannemora Monday afternoon by County Judge Andrew J. Cook when Spangenberg pleaded guilty to a charge of carnal abuse of a child. As a second offender Spangenberg was given a heavy sentence prescribed by law.

Last Thursday Spangenberg pleaded guilty after he had asked for time to secure an attorney when first arraigned on the charge. Monday when brought before the court he admitted having been previously convicted of a sex crime and receiving a term of from 2½ to five years at that time. Democrats Offer G.O.P. Challenge

President Tells Party's Convention Campaign Is in Behalf of Democracy

Democrats Select State Ticket, Endorse Two Candidates

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—The political fight over pivotal New York's 47 electoral votes was on in earnest today when a Democratic state ticket in the field challenging the Republicans to "name New Deal measures which must go."

President Roosevelt spurred the vote drive in his home state by characterizing it as a "campaign in behalf of our democratic form of government," in a message to last night's closing session of the Democratic state convention.

Heading the state ticket, Senator James M. Mead in accepting renomination, threw at the Republicans the assertion that "they know the New Deal is here to stay."

The convention heard Senator Robert F. Wagner, permanent chairman, assail Wendell L. Willkie's record in labor relations and his fight against the Tennessee Valley Authority.

"Let is be thankful," Wagner said, "that while the Republican [illegible]didate was a special pleader [illegible] the utilities) our President [illegible]serving unselfishly the inter[illegible] the land we love.

Sums Up Objectives

[illegible]or Mead summed up the obj[illegible]es of the Democratic administration in three points which he [illegible] would develop fully in an [illegible]sive campaign up and down [illegible] state. They were:

To strengthen democracy by defensive preparedness against aggression whether by open attack or secret infiltration;

To strengthen democracy by increasing economic efficiency;

To strengthen democracy by improving the welfare of the people.

"General attacks are made on the New Deal," Mead said, "and yet, almost every measure is either extolled by the opposition, or else we are led to believe that its future remains secure."

Discussion of strictly state issues was almost entirely lacking at the convention which even dispensed with the usual state platform. It adopted instead a 40-word resolution which said the party "expresses its admiration of, and enthusiastically endorses and approved the declaration of principles enunciated in the enlightened and constructive platform adopted by the Democratic national convention at Chicago."

In addition to Mead, the convention renominated Reps. Caroline O'Day and Matthew J. Merritt, as representatives-at-large, gave bipartisan endorsement to Edmond H. Lewis, Syracuse Republican and Albert Conway, Brooklyn Democrat for associate judges of the State Courts of Appeals and nom-

Official Statement Is That Talks Will Have Clarifying Effect on Views

Reaction Guessed

Rome Tries to Forestall British Shouts of 'Resistance'

Rome, Oct. 1 (AP).—Authoritative sources declared today that immediate Spanish entry into the European war was not an issue at conferences started this morning between Premier Mussolini and Generalissimo Francisco Franco's minister of government, Ramon Serrano Suner.

Italo-German friendship for Spain, it was said, will not permit any pressure upon Spain to step into an active part in the war.

The Rome talks, started this morning, were said to have "a very important aim—already reached—of reinforcing, clarifying and making precise the identity of views between the Nationalist Spain of Generalissimo Franco and the two victorious Axis powers."

The source added that England probably would "shout victory" and say that "Spain resisted Axis pressure," but that no such pressure had been brought to bear.

The Spanish envoy reached Rome at 10 a. m. (3 a. m. EST) from Berlin, where he had conferred with Adolf Hitler and other Nazi leaders. He saw Mussolini shortly after arriving and their first talk was finished at 12:35 p. m. Serrano Suner then went to lunch with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Final Touches

Foreign observers said they believed Serrano Suner and Premier Mussolini would put the final touches to an understanding defining Spain's part in Italian-German plans to conquer Gibraltar but Fascists discounted the possibility of a formal alliance at the present time.

In general the Fascist press reflected a belief that Spain could be used in the Axis scheme as a base for attack on Gibraltar without entering into an outright military alliance.

Il Popolo Di Roma declared Spain already is "in the political system" of the Axis powers and added:

"Spain's position, as it will remain for the present, is that of being vigilant and watchful over all that happens in the European world, ready at the opportune moment to use her rights and achieve even with arms her aspirations."

The "right moment" was believed by foreign circles to refer to the time when Britain's collapse would appear imminent, for it is generally agreed that Spain is incapable of fighting a protracted war so soon after emerging from her devitalizing civil war.

Could Use Friendship

Il Messaggero said the Italians certainly could use Spain's friendship in the Axis service—which was taken by some neutral observers as a reference to Spain's importance as a stepping stone for an attack upon Gibraltar.

Berlin Acknowledges Strong Anglo Defense but Says Attacks Successful

Ships Are Hit

Long-Range Guns Hit Vessels in Dover Harbor

Berlin, Oct. 1 (AP)—"Highly successful" air raids on Britain, particularly London, were reported by the high command today while Germans minimized the effectiveness of British raiders who gave Berlin its longest alarm of the war last night.

"Our air force attacked war essential objectives in England by day and night in closed formations and with numerous individual planes," said the high command's report of the preceding 24 hours. "The severest attacks were centered on London as well as the sea region of the British Isles."

It acknowledged "a strong defense" of London, but said the raids, especially during the day, were "highly successful" nevertheless and declared that, in all, Britain lost 68 warplanes against German losses of 31 yesterday. (The British said 47 German and 22 British planes were downed.)

Listed among the Luftwaffe's hits were: An airplant in southern England, an airport, a southeast harbor, a 10,000-ton merchantman sunk off Ireland and a convoy off Scotland dispersed with two ships totalling 10,000 tons aflame.

Ships Are Shelled

Nazi long-range guns also shelled ships in Dover harbor "with visible success," the high command said, and submarines were credited with sinking eight British merchant ships, totalling 49,760 tons.

Of Britain's air losses, four were chalked up to Nazi night fighter planes and six to anti-aircraft fire, presumably during the raids over western Germany and Berlin last night in which, Nazi sources said, British pilots were "novices" sent over more for training than for heavy bombing.

The British raids were said to have been directed against populous industrial western Germany and the Berlin suburbs, where several persons were reported injured by a heavy bomb which exploded near three apartment buildings.

The alarm kept Berlin's residents in shelters five hours and eight minutes.

One Bomb Explosion

Berlin authorities said they had found evidence of only one bomb explosion in the city proper. This missile blasted out a crater in a street and smashed in the walls of apartment houses on both sides of the thoroughfare, but no one was reported injured.

The British fliers met a steady barrage of anti-aircraft fire which authorities said blocked their entry to the city at several points and compelled them to stay at a great height which prevented any "aimed bombing."

Most of the activity appeared to be concentrated in the outskirts, where most of Berlin's industries are located.

It was the third consecutive night of alarms for Berlin's 4,000,000, who had to tumble out of bed before midnight to dash for shelters. There was a two hour and 10 minute alarm Sunday morning and an alarm lasting an hour and 50 minutes Monday morning.

October Trial Term

Monday, October 7, the October trial term of Supreme Court will be convened here by Justice Harry E. Schirick, with a trial and grand jury in attendance. There are 226 civil cases on the general calendar, thirteen of which are preferred. The call of the calender for marking cases was held this afternoon and jurors will report next Monday at 11 o'clock. The call of the calendar to make up a day calendar will take place at 2 o'clock.

Willkie Charges New Dealers With Grant, Grab Plans

Republican Nominee Is Target of Egg Tossers, but Wife, Not He, Gets Splatter

Aboard Willkie train en route through Michigan, Oct. 1 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie charged the Roosevelt administration today with trying to solve its problems by one of two methods—"appropriating more money or grabbing more power."

As a result, the Republican presidential nominee said at Pontiac, Mich., the administration has more power than any of its predecessors.

Boos were mingled with applause from the crowd surrounding the court house, where Willkie spoke from a specially erected platform.

While he was driving back to the railroad station an egg was thrown into his car. It broke against the back of the front seat, and splashed over Mrs. Willkie.

Willkie Scowls

Willkie scowled, his car stopped for a moment, and one of his bodyguards pointed to the direction from which the egg was thrown.

A minute later another egg hit a truck carrying photographers ahead of Willkie's car.

"Whenever there has been a continuous concentration of power in the federal government," the nominee told his audience, "the right of laboring men to organize rapidly has disappeared."

Any one who seeks to answer arguments against administration activities with "catcalls," Willkie said, and who is able to lead others to follow him, "is going down

System in Army To Be Different For Men Drafted

Educational Side of Life in Training Camps to Be Stressed and Other Methods Changed

Washington, Oct. 1 (AP) — The war department incorporated in its conscription program today three more measures to facilitate the training of men drafted for service, to encourage their initiative and to foster their morale.

Top item was creation of an entirely new peacetime system of army tactical corps commanders whose "principal function" will be to train regular army, National Guard and drafted troops.

The army simultaneously made known yesterday its intention of giving trainees an opportunity to qualify for officers' commissions, and also announced the allotment of $2,594,152 for athletic equipment, books, service clubs and motion picture theatres to provide additional entertainment at training centers.

Disclosing for the first time that draftees would be given an opportunity to rise above a sergeant's grade, General George C. Marshall said that plans were being made for "candidates' schools" which picked enlisted men might attend for the last three or four months of their year's training to work for lieutenants' commissions.

The chief of staff also announced that nine tactical corps would be created to control the training of the regular army and National Guard units into which draft trainees will be absorbed.

President Roosevelt's message to the men subject to conscription is "that each of us must willingly do his best if we are to hold

Pennsylvania Opens Speed Highway From Harrisburg to Pittsburgh

Carlisle, Pa., Oct. 1 (AP)—Motorists willing to pay tolls to avoid tortuous routes over the Allegheny Mountains rolled today over Pennsylvania's 160-mile "dream highway," hailed by its builders as the forerunner of a nationwide network of super-highways for national defense.

Twenty-three months after ground was broken for the easily-graded, four-lane route between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, ticket-sellers gave the "go" signal at 12:01 a. m.

There was no farnfare or ceremony commensurate with the $70,000,000 cost of the express highway and the toil of drilling through the tunnels Andrew Carnegie left partly-finished when he abandoned his projected South Penn Railroad more than 50 years ago.

At this eastern terminus a few hundred spectators stoo[illegible]n the weird glow of sodium va[illegible]amps; a dozen or so passen[illegible]tomobiles and trucks w[illegible] twin westbound lanes. At midnight, black cats ambled across the gleaming cement. A minute later, a ticket-seller dropped his arm in the gesture of an automobile-race starter, and traffic was under way.

The scene was duplicated at the ten other points of entry between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh.

Although the highway was designed for speed—test cars bettered 100 miles an hour—motorists were held to 50 miles an hour.

There are no traffic lights or intersections. "Cloveleafs," bridges and underpasses speed the motorist over or under crossroads. The four lanes divided by a center strip narrow to one lane in each direction only at seven tunnels through the mountains.

The toll for passenger cars is $1.50 for the full route, or $2.25 for a round trip good for 30 days. On shorter trips the fare is a cent a mile. Truck charges range from $3 to $10 for the route and from two to six cents a mile for shorter distances.

British Have Threefold Plan for Execution of War at Home; Alarms Sound Today

Raids Are Made

R. A. F. Reports Violent Blasts in Germany After Bombings

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—With no end in sight to the bombs which have fallen on London day and night for 25 days, Britain's capital is preparing for the severest winter of war in its history.

Its plan is threefold—to combat the German raiders with the strongest possible defense weapons, to speed an exodus of women and children to more sparsely settled and thus less bombed, areas; to give those who must stay the utmost shelter.

After another nightlong series of attacks broken off just before dawn, London's anti-aircraft guns roared into action again this morning against scattered German raiders.

Early this afternoon several bombs fell in a thickly settled southwest London district and there were believed to have been casualties. A raider who penetrated to the central London area disappeared toward the southeast amid a burst of anti-aircraft shells and followed by a patrol of British fighters.

Plane Crashes

One German plane, believed to have been that which earlier was reported to have strafed a train in a southeast London station, crashed in Surrey after a fight with a Hurricane.

Three other raiders were reported shot down out of formation in Dorsetshire when British fighters attacked a flight of abou[illegible] 15 which crossed the southwe[illegible] coast late in the morning.

After a tour of bombed are[illegible] Harry Willink, special commi[illegible]sioner for rehousing the homeless told adults that "all those who ca[illegible] leave should."

Extension of the mother-and-child removal scheme to include 14 London boroughs was announced by Health Minister Malcolm MacDonald, and Lord Woolton, minister of food, announced that 58 emergency feeding centers have been opened for the homeless in London.

"More than 22,000 school children have been evacuated from London in the last two weeks," MacDonald said. "Many more ought to go."

Points Out Necessity

He reminded mothers in the 14 hard-hit boroughs that "by going out with their children they will not only be securing greater safety but will also be relieving the problem of providing shelter for those people who have to stay in London."

Intensification of London's preparedness comes at a time when the Nazi air siege seems, if anything, to be letting up slightly an[illegible] when promise is held for strong[illegible] defenses.

Observers reason that the go[illegible]ernment's efforts are not the [illegible]sult of any particular change [illegible] the situation but merely are [illegible] effort to get in the best poss[illegible] shape before the cold weather [illegible] in.

Violent Blasts Reported

London, Oct. 1 (AP).—Violent [illegible]plosions in Berlin, Mannheim a[illegible] elsewhere in Germany follow[illegible] widespread R. A. F. raids l[illegible] night and early today, the ministry news service declared [illegible] a summary of the air force's c[illegible]tinuing attacks.

For over three and a half ho[illegible] heavy bombers, which had s[illegible]ped past the German anti-aircr[illegible] guns, moved over the German c[illegible]ital, raining bombs on po[illegible] plants which already had [illegible] damaged in previous raids, [illegible] summary said.

The German "invasion base[illegible] Dunkerque, Calais, Ostend, [illegible]logne, Lorient and Le Havre [illegible] also pounded.

The air ministry news se[illegible] said the west power station in [illegible]lin, hit last week, was [illegible] identified by flares.

"A few minutes after the [illegible] stick of bombs had fallen [illegible] was a large explosion and [illegible]ous fires marked the success[illegible] attack," it reported. It co[illegible] with these details:

The [illegible] er asserted that "the New [illegible] social reforms, long accused [illegible] opponents of impeding economic recovery as well as national defense, are given a clean [illegible] health by Mr. Willkie."

Sums Up Objectives

[illegible] or Mead summed up the objectives of the Democratic administration in three points which he said he would develop fully in an intensive campaign up and down the state. They were:

To strengthen democracy by defensive preparedness against aggression, whether by open attack or secret infiltration;

To strengthen democracy by increasing economic efficiency;

To strengthen democracy by improving the welfare of the people.

"General attacks are made on the New Deal," Mead said, "and yet, almost every measure is either extolled by the opposition, or else we are led to believe that its future remains secure."

Discussion of strictly state issues was almost entirely lacking at the convention which even dispensed with the usual state platform. It adopted instead a 40-word resolution which said the party "expresses its admiration of, and enthusiastically endorses and approved the declaration of principles enunciated in the enlightened and constructive platform adopted by the Democratic national convention at Chicago."

In addition to Mead, the convention renominated Reps. Caroline O'Day and Matthew J. Merritt, as representatives-at-large, gave bipartisan endorsement to Edmond H. Lewis, Syracuse Republican and Albert Conway, Brooklyn Democrat for associate judges of the State Court of Appeals and nom-

London Prepares for Worst Winter Of War in History; Germany Admits Anglo Defense Strong; Suner, Duce Talk

Official Statement Is That Talks Will Have Clarifying Effect on Views

Rome Tries to Forestall British Shouts of 'Resistance'

Rome, Oct. 1 (AP).—Authoritative sources declared today that immediate Spanish entry into the European war was not an issue at conferences started this morning between Premier Mussolini and Generalissimo Francisco Franco's minister of government, Ramon Serrano Suner.

Italo-German friendship for Spain, it was said, will not permit any pressure upon Spain to step into an active part in the war.

The Rome talks, started this morning, were said to have "a very important aim—already reached—of reinforcing, clarifying and making precise the identity of views between the Nationalist Spain of Generalissimo Franco and the two victorious Axis powers."

The source added that England probably would "shout victory" and say that "Spain resisted Axis pressure," but that no such pressure had been brought to bear.

The Spanish envoy reached Rome at 10 a. m. (3 a. m. EST) from Berlin, where he had conferred with Adolf Hitler and other Nazi leaders. He saw Mussolini shortly after arriving and their first talk was finished at 12:35 p. m. Serrano Suner then went to lunch with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Final Touches

Foreign observers said they believed Serrano Suner and Premier Mussolini would put the final touches to an understanding defining Spain's part in Italian-German plans to conquer Gibraltar but Fascists discounted the possibility of a formal alliance at the present time.

In general the Fascist press reflected a belief that Spain could be used in the Axis scheme as a base for attack on Gibraltar without entering into an outright military alliance.

Il Popolo Di Roma declared Spain already is "in the political system" of the Axis powers and added:

"Spain's position, as it will remain for the present, is that of being vigilant and watchful over all that happens in the European world, ready at the opportune moment to use her rights and achieve even with arms her aspirations."

The "right moment" was believed by foreign circles to refer to the time when Britain's collapse would appear imminent, for it is generally agreed that Spain is incapable of fighting a protracted war so soon after emerging from her devitalizing civil war.

Could Use Friendship

Il Messaggero said the Italians certainly could use Spain's friendship in the Axis service—which was taken by some neutral observers as a reference to Spain's importance as a stepping stone for an attack upon Gibraltar.

Berlin Acknowledges Strong Anglo Defense but Says Attacks Successful

Ships Are Hit

Long-Range Guns Hit Vessels in Dover Harbor

Berlin, Oct. 1 (AP)—"Highly successful" air raids on Britain, particularly London, were reported by the high command today while Germans minimized the effectiveness of British raiders who gave Berlin its longest alarm of the war last night.

"Our air force attacked war essential objectives in England by day and night in closed formations and with numerous individual planes," said the high command's report of the preceding 24 hours. "The severest attacks were centered on London as well as the sea region of the British Isles."

It acknowledged "a strong defense" of London, but said the raids, especially during the day, were "highly successful" nevertheless and declared that, in all, Britain lost 68 warplanes against German losses of 31 yesterday. (The British said 47 German and 22 British planes were downed.)

Listed among the Luftwaffe's hits were: An airplant in southern England, an airport, a southeast harbor, a 10,000-ton merchantman sunk off Ireland and a convoy off Scotland dispersed with two ships totalling 10,000 tons aflame.

Ships Are Shelled

Nazi long-range guns also shelled ships in Dover harbor "with visible success," the high command said, and submarines were credited with sinking eight British merchant ships totalling 49,760 tons.

Of Britain's air losses, four were chalked up to Nazi night fighter planes and six to anti-aircraft fire, presumably during the raids over western Germany and Berlin last night in which, Nazi sources said, British pilots were "novices" sent over more for training than for heavy bombing.

The British raids were said to have been directed against populous industrial western Germany and the Berlin suburbs, where several persons were reported injured by a heavy bomb which exploded near three apartment buildings.

The alarm kept Berlin's residents in shelters five hours and eight minutes.

One Bomb Explosion

Berlin authorities said they had found evidence of only one bomb explosion in the city proper. This missile blasted out a crater in a street and smashed in the walls of apartment houses on both sides of the thoroughfare, but no one was reported injured.

The British fliers met a steady barrage of anti-aircraft fire which authorities said blocked their entry to the city at several points and compelled them to stay at a great height which prevented any "aimed bombing."

Most of the activity appeared to be concentrated in the outskirts, where most of Berlin's industries are located.

It was the third consecutive night of alarms for Berlin's 4,000,000, who had to tumble out of bed before midnight to dash for shelters. There was a two hour and 10 minute alarm Sunday morning and an alarm lasting an hour and 50 minutes Monday morning.

Willkie Charges New Dealers With Grant, Grab Plans

Republican Nominee Is Target of Egg Tossers, but Wife, Not He, Gets Splatter

Aboard Willkie train en route through Michigan, Oct. 1 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie charged the Roosevelt administration today with trying to solve its problems by one of two methods—"appropriating more money or grabbing more power."

As a result, the Republican presidential nominee said at Pontiac, Mich., the administration has more power than any of its predecessors.

Boos were mingled with applause from the crowd surrounding the court house, where Willkie spoke from a specially erected platform.

While he was driving back to the railroad station an egg was thrown into his car. It broke against the back of the front seat, and splashed over Mrs. Willkie.

Willkie Scowls

Willkie scowled, his car stopped for a moment, and one of his bodyguards pointed to the direction from which the egg was thrown.

A minute later another egg hit a truck carrying photographers ahead of Willkie's car.

"Whenever there has been a continuous concentration of power in the federal government," the nominee told his audience, "the right of laboring men to organize rapidly has disappeared."

Any one who seeks to answer arguments against administration activities with "catcalls," Willkie said, and who is able to lead others to follow him, "is going down

System in Army To Be Different For Men Drafted

Educational Side of Life in Training Camps to Be Stressed and Other Methods Changed

Washington, Oct. 1 (AP) — The war department incorporated in its conscription program today three more measures to facilitate the training of men drafted for service, to encourage their initiative and to foster their morale.

Top item was creation of an entirely new peacetime system of army tactical corps commanders whose "principal function" will be to train regular army, National Guard and drafted troops.

The army simultaneously made known yesterday its intention of giving trainees an opportunity to qualify for officers' commissions, and also announced the allotment of $2,594,152 for athletic equipment, books, service clubs and motion picture theatres to provide additional entertainment at training centers.

Disclosing for the first time that draftees would be given an opportunity to rise above a sergeant's grade, General George C. Marshall said that plans were being made for "candidates' schools" which picked enlisted men might attend for the last three or four months of their year's training to work for lieutenants' commissions.

The chief of staff also announced that nine tactical corps would be created to control the training of the regular army and National Guard units into which draft trainees will be absorbed.

President Roosevelt's message to the men subject to conscription is "that each of us must willingly do his best if we are to hold

Pennsylvania Opens Speed Highway From Harrisburg to Pittsburgh

Carlisle, Pa., Oct. 1 (AP)—Motorists willing to pay tolls to avoid tortuous routes over the Allegheny Mountains rolled today over Pennsylvania's 160-mile "dream highway," hailed by its builders as the forerunner of a nationwide network of super-highways for national defense.

Twenty-three months after ground was broken for the easily-graded, four-lane route between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, ticket-sellers gave the "go" signal at 12:01 a. m.

There was no farnfare or ceremony commensurate with the $70,000,000 cost of the express highway and the toil of drilling through the tunnels Andrew Carnegie left partly-finished when he abandoned his projected South Penn Railroad more than 50 years ago.

At this eastern terminus a few hundred spectators stood in the weird glow of sodium vapor lamps; a dozen or so passenger automobiles and trucks w twin westbound lanes. At midnight, black cats ambled across the gleaming cement. A minute later, a ticket-seller dropped his arm in the gesture of an automobile-race starter, and traffic was under way.

The scene was duplicated at the ten other points of entry between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh.

Although the highway was designed for speed—test cars bettered 100 miles an hour—motorists were held to 50 miles an hour.

There are no traffic lights or intersections. "Cloveleafs," bridges and underpasses speed the motorist over or under crossroads. The four lanes divided by a center strip narrow to one lane in each direction only at seven tunnels through the mountains.

The toll for passenger cars is $1.50 for the full route, or $2.25 for a round trip good for 30 days. On shorter trips the fare is a cent a mile. Truck charges range from $3 to $10 for the route and from two to six cents a mile for shorter distances.

British Have Threefold Plan for Execution of War at Home; Alarms Sound Today

Raids Are Made

R. A. F. Reports Violent Blasts in Germany After Bombings

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—With no end in sight to the bombs which have fallen on London day and night for 25 days, Britain's capital is preparing for the severest winter of war in its history.

Its plan is threefold—to combat the German raiders with the strongest possible defense weapons, to speed an exodus of women and children to more sparsely settled and thus less bombed, areas; to give those who must stay the utmost shelter.

After another nightlong series of attacks broken off just before dawn, London's anti-aircraft guns roared into action again this morning against scattered German raiders.

Early this afternoon several bombs fell in a thickly settled southwest London district and there were believed to have been casualties. A raider who penetrated to the central London area disappeared toward the southeast amid a burst of anti-aircraft shells and followed by a patrol of British fighters.

Plane Crashes

One German plane, believed to have been that which earlier was reported to have strafed a train in a southeast London station, crashed in Surrey after a fight with a Hurricane.

Three other raiders were reported shot down out of formation in Dorsetshire when British fighters attacked a flight of about 15 which crossed the southwest coast late in the morning.

After a tour of bombed areas Harry Willink, special commissioner for rehousing the homeless, told adults that "all those who can leave should."

Extension of the mother-and-child removal scheme to include 14 London boroughs was announced by Health Minister Malcolm MacDonald, and Lord Woolton, minister of food, announced that 58 emergency feeding centers have been opened for the homeless in London.

"More than 22,000 school children have been evacuated from London in the last two weeks," MacDonald said. "Many more ought to go."

Points Out Necessity

He reminded mothers in the 14 hard-hit boroughs that "by going out with their children they will not only be securing greater safety but will also be relieving the problem of providing shelter for those people who have to stay in London."

Intensification of London's preparedness comes at a time when the Nazi air siege seems, if anything, to be letting up slightly and when promise is held for stronger defenses.

Observers reason that the government's efforts are not the result of any particular change in the situation but merely are an effort to get in the best possible shape before the cold weather sets in.

Violent Blasts Reported

London, Oct. 1 (AP).—Violent explosions in Berlin, Mannheim a elsewhere in Germany follow widespread R. A. F. raids l night and early today, the ministry news service declared a summary of the air force's c tinuing attacks.

For over three and a half ho heavy bombers, which had s ped past the German anti-aircr guns, moved over the German c ital, raining bombs on po plants which already had b damaged in previous raids, summary said.

The German "invasion base Dunkerque, Calais, Ostend, logne, Lorient and Le Havre also pounded.

The air ministry news se said the west power station in lin, hit last week, was cl identified by flares.

"A few minutes after the stick of bombs had fallen was a large explosion and n ous fires marked the success attack," it reported. It conti with these details:

The Klingenberg power also was "heavily bombed ways were hit and a on fire.

Important Situation of Day Is Meeting at Rome Between Mussolini and Envoy Suner

Present Indications Are That Gen. Franco Will Attempt to Sidestep Active Warfare

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The important situation of the day centers in the meeting between Signor Mussolini and Spanish Envoy Suner in Rome to discuss Spain's part in Axis plans to reduce the great British stronghold of Gibraltar as an essential phase of the effort to smash England's domination of the Mediterranean.

Indications are that Spanish Generalissimo Franco—his country shattered by the civil war—will try to avoid direct participation in the Axis program. However, the main object of Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini appears to be to secure Spanish bases for operations against the big rock.

I suggest we await further developments and turn our attention today to England's general position in face of this and other serious threats. This thought is inspired by a letter I have received from a New York resident who has a German name and obvious Nazi sympathies, roundly taking me to task because I have ventured the view that England isn't yet beaten.

Says They're Licked

He (or she) declares the British are licked and don't know it, and further deposes:

"Nineteen days (now 24) of the bombardment of London and England is a rather long time for the German luftwaffe, I admit, but if you knew anything about German thoroughness, endurance and power or were willing to admit it, you would have begun to worry about your British friends ever since they lost their good sense and declared this war on Germany. This even if the Germans do not perform the expected daily miracle of doing the impossible.

"Britain is licked, only in accordance with British custom and disposition it takes them a little longer to realize it than it does anyone else."

I receive much comment on this column—some favorable, some accusing me of being anti-Nazi and pro-British, and some charging that I am pro-Nazi and anti-British. I suppose it's hard for a violent partisan to believe that professional observers can be unbiased.

Hitler Can't Impose Terms

I still believe that Herr Hitler isn't in position to impose peace terms on England, great as have been his achievements.

England isn't out of the woods yet by a long shot. Indeed, at this moment she is bracing herself for two threatened crises—the projected assault on Gibraltar, "key to the Mediterranean" and a possible Nazi attempt to invade England during the Indian summer.

Then there is another danger which I have emphasized repeatedly, and that rests in the terrible punishment which England, and London in particular, is receiving from bombing.

There arrives a point at which human endurance can stand no more—when nerves snap and morale goes. There has been no indication thus far that London can't take it. On the contrary, the people have stood it amazingly well. Still the danger is there.

There are other hazards which Britain must meet, and we shall do well not to forget them lest we lose perspective. Having assessed all these against England we are entitled, in order to maintain balance, to remember that (1) the British blockade still is tight and strong, that (2) the entire continent of Europe already is being squeezed so hard that there are signs of approaching hunger in many places, that (3) by the same token vital war supplies are getting low, that (4) Britain has been gaining strength, and that (5) because of all this the Axis needs a quick victory before the blockade garrotes it.

Important Situation of Day Is Meeting at Rome Between Mussolini and Envoy Suner

Present Indications Are That Gen. Franco Will Attempt to Sidestep Active Warfare

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The important situation of the day centers in the meeting between Signor Mussolini and Spanish Envoy Suner in Rome to discuss Spain's part in Axis plans to reduce the great British stronghold of Gibraltar as an essential phase of the effort to smash England's domination of the Mediterranean.

Indications are that Spanish Generalissimo Franco—his country shattered by the civil war—will try to avoid direct participation in the Axis program. However, the main object of Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini appears to be to secure Spanish bases for operations against the big rock.

I suggest we await further developments and turn our attention today to England's general position in face of this and other serious threats. This thought is inspired by a letter I have received from a New York resident who has a German name and obvious Nazi sympathies, roundly taking me to task because I have ventured the view that England isn't yet beaten.

Says They're Licked

He (or she) declares the British are licked and don't know it, and further deposes:

"Nineteen days (now 24) of the bombardment of London and England is a rather long time for the German luftwaffe, I admit, but if you knew anything about German thoroughness, endurance and power or were willing to admit it, you would have begun to worry about your British friends ever since they lost their good sense and declared this war on Germany. This even if the Germans do not perform the expected daily miracle of doing the impossible.

"Britain is licked, only in accordance with British custom and disposition it takes them a little longer to realize it than it does anyone else."

I receive much comment on this column—some favorable, some accusing me of being anti-Nazi and pro-British, and some charging that I am pro-Nazi and anti-British. I suppose it's hard for a violent partisan to believe that professional observers can be unbiased.

Hitler Can't Impose Terms

I still believe that Herr Hitler isn't in position to impose peace terms on England, great as have been his achievements.

England isn't out of the woods yet by a long shot. Indeed, at this moment she is bracing herself for two threatened crises—the projected assault on Gibraltar, "key to the Mediterranean" and a possible Nazi attempt to invade England during the Indian summer.

Then there is another danger which I have emphasized repeatedly, and that rests in the terrible punishment which England, and London in particular, is receiving from bombing.

There arrives a point at which human endurance can stand no more—when nerves snap and morale goes. There has been no indication thus far that London can't take it. On the contrary, the people have stood it amazingly well. Still the danger is there.

There are other hazards which Britain must meet, and we shall do well not to forget them lest we lose perspective. Having assessed all these against England we are entitled, in order to maintain balance, to remember that (1) the British blockade still is tight and strong, that (2) the entire continent of Europe already is being squeezed so hard that there are signs of approaching hunger in many places, that (3) by the same token vital war supplies are getting low, that (4) Britain has been gaining strength, and that (5) because of all this the Axis needs a quick victory before the blockade garrotes it.

No Action Is Seen Likely on Further Funds for British

Proposal by Senator King Would Exempt Britain From Limitations of Neutrality Law

Washington, Oct. 1 (AP)—Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, said today it appeared impossible for the Senate to act at this session on a proposal sanctioning unrestricted financial aid to Great Britain.

Barkley said the resolution would "provoke a lot of debate' and for that reason action at this time was not possible. "If we were going to do anything about it, it should have been introduced long ago," he said.

The proposal, offered by Senator King (D.-Utah), would exempt Britain from the limitations of present neutrality and other laws which prohibit loans to belligerent or debt-defaulting nations.

Chairman Pittman (D.-Nev.) said the Senate foreign relations committee, to which King's resolution was referred after introduction yesterday, would await state department views before considering the measure.

King told his colleagues that he thought the time was "propitious for the consideration of steps which might be taken for the protection of our interests in the Pacific."

He said that "the tragic situation throughout the world" as well as Japanese operations in China and Indo-China had influenced him in this bill.

Fowler Criticizes Republicans for 'Bungling' Offer

Speaking before the Democratic county committee Monday evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel, N. Jansen Fowler, Democratic candidate for Member of Assembly, criticized local city and county officials for "bungling" an opportunity to bring to this locality a large airplane industry.

He said a "small" contribution of $24,000 toward the construction of a federal airport to cost $120,000 back in 1936 had caused the concern to abandon any plan to erect a factory here. Had there been an airport the factory might have located here, he said.

Mr. Fowler also spoke of a possibility of the establishing of an air-base north of the city along the railroad as a C. A. A. project. Mr. Fowler said he would back this plan which would provide the locality with an adequate air field to train young flyers. He said action now might bring to this locality a $270,000 air field.

General Election Registration Days

Registration in City of Kingston Will Be on October 9, 10, 18, 19

The time is drawing near when voters must register if they expect to vote at the coming general election. It is well to bear in mind that unless you are registered you cannot vote.

In the city of Kingston registration days this year will be Wednesday and Thursday, October 9 and 10, and Friday and Saturday, October 18 and 19. On the first three days, October 9, 10 and 18, polling places will be open for registration between the hours of 10 a. m. and 10 p. m. On the fourth day, October 19, the hours are 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. City voters must appear personally at the polls in order to register.

In the rest of Ulster county, outside the city of Kingston, there will be two registration days, Thursday, October 10, and Saturday, October 19. Polls will be open for registration on the first day, October 10, from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. and on the second day, October 19, from 1 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Registration in the districts outside the city of Kingston is nonpersonal, inspectors of election being charged with the duty of placing upon the registry books the names of qualified voters who appeared upon the last preceding list and are still residents of the district, and in addition the names of new voters who may have moved into the district during the year. However, even in these districts where personal registration is not required wise voters make a practice of visiting their polling place on registration day making certain that their names have been registered.

General election this year comes on November 5, and the polls will be open for voting from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Oil Refineries Bombed

At Hanover and at Leuna, east of Leipzig, they dropped their bombs on oil refineries, and at Leuna, already damaged in raids last month, the fliers saw heavy explosions, and numerous fires, one so big the men could see it ten minutes after they had sped away.

At Hanover, too, the fires flared skywards, and at Ehrang the explosions in the railway yards were followed by vivid yellow fires. The same thing happened near Osnabrueck when the yards were attacked.

Over Limberg, Holland, the RAF dropped bombs on the airdrome, and saw two large explosions and six smaller ones.

Attacks also were made on docks at Cuxhaven and Amsterdam, an aircraft factory at Rotenburg, on a munition factory near Magdenburg, and on yards and rail communications at Bremen and Brussels.

If democracy is to be preserved, the nominee said, people should not "substitute catcalls for thinking."

He renewed his argument that the New Deal "has made it pleasant and easy for the rich by providing numerous tax exempt bonds in which they can invest."

Urging has hearers to think about the election, Willkie added: "Don't let them lead you like cattle to the shambles." He urged them not to be "misled by men like Ed Flynn who buys up votes." Edward J. Flynn is chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Circulate Petition For Local Bases

Drive Started to Get Army Aeroplane and Navy Seaplane Bases

Interested citizens of Kingston are circulating a petition addressed to Senator James M. Mead uring him to aid in securing an army aeroplane base and navy seaplane base for Kingston.

The petition states that there are two "ideal locations for the both bases." It further states that such moneys, it was understood, have been appropriated for that purpose, and only locations were needed.

The petition calls attention to the strategic location of Kingston, which lies 90 miles north of New York city; 60 miles south of Albany and 10 miles west of the Ashokan Reservoir.

Following is a copy of the petition sent to Senator Mead:

THE NAZI ARMADA

That story of the destruction of a great leet of Nazi convoy vessels in a storm, with he loss of 50,000 to 60,000 troops bound for vasion of England, bears a striking resemblance to the history of the Spanish Armada hich sailed against England in the year 588. The main difference is that, whereas he Spanish fleet reached England and then as destroyed by the English fleet with the elp of a big storm, the German fleet never eally got started. The British air forces first ave it a drastic bombing and the storm did he rest.

Another rough parallel might be found in e fate of the great fleet of more than 1,000 arships which the Persian King Xerxes nt against the Greeks at Salamis in 480 C., which was destroyed by the Athenians der Themistocles with the help of a storm. at victory saved Athenian civilization and l to the flowering of the great Periclean e.

Unfortunately for glory and romance, re has been no corroboration of the great zi disaster by British authorities. There a bad storm, and there must have been ny vessels lost with their crews, but the y seems to have been greatly exaggated.

eanwhile the fierce war of the British orce against the convoy ships across the nnel and along the coast northward still inues. That prolonged fight itself may in history as a big victory, though it is one episode in the great Battle of Britain.

PAN-AMERICANISM

his glorious hemisphere unity that we've rd so much about evidently requires quite w grains of salt. We are very far from g one big, happy family. A newspaper n who has just been down below, taking ank look at the other Americas and estiating their good-will and cooperativeness, ports:

"The neighborliness and amity of these ntries among themselves are a myth. All acutely nationalistic, jealous of their persites and prestige and divided not only by onal interests but by temperament and dition.

JAPAN'S GAINS

So Japan now has a definite military allince with the European dictators. And the emocracies can say, in the words of the nake charmer who brought the asp to Cleoatra to kill herself with, "I wish you much y of the worm."

The Japanese militarists, tackling another big real estate operation, and feeling a bit lonesome away off there alone, naturally derive some comfort from being lined up more definitely with the European hijackers. But it is not clear to outsiders just how their European pals are going to get much help to them, half a world away, with British sea power holding the Atlantic and American sea ower holding the Pacific.

For the present, at least, it looks as if pan is still "on her own" as much as ever. She has the additional handicap of losing her American war supplies. And Uncle Sam may soon be sitting pretty in the great British naval base at Singapore, barring Japanese expansion into the Philippines and the Dutch Indies, and insuring our own continued supply of rubber and tin.

CHEAPER LIVING

As our people embark upon a new and huge campaign of national defense, to be ready for any foreign peril that may threaten us, there is one material factor that is very reassuring. It is the comparative cheapness of our cost of living.

A current report of the Conference Board shows that the trend lately has been slightly downward, from a level which was already much lower than in 1929. Food prices are found to be 27.6 per cent less than they were in August of that year, clothing 26.6 per cent less, rents 5.5 per cent less, fuel and light 8.1 per cent less and sundries 1.7 per cent less.

When 1923 is assumed as a normal year, it is found that the all-round purchasing value of the dollar in August of this year was 118.3 cents, and apparently it is a little higher than that now.

Gibraltar, though a little wobbly, still seems to be regarded as a good insurance ad.

The dictators, who propose a "front of new empires," already have far too much front.

DAY DREAMING OR PHANTASY

I spent a number of hours trying to convince a young chap that remaining at home and dreaming of the great things he was "going to do" was not helping his parents who were poor and who could use any wages he could earn. While he was dreaming about what he was going to do in the future, they were giving him his board and lodging.

As I talked to him he used large words and quoted various authorities for his right to live his own life. I pointed out to him that everybody wanted to live their own lives and that sometimes I felt like going off on a long cruise around the world. However I knew I had a wife and family, that I had patients who believed that I helped them and they depended upon me. And so I continued at my work and tried to get a long trip every three or four years and at least two or three weeks' vacation every year besides. So it was up to him to work at anything with his hand or with his head, and so help his parents while he had his health instead of waiting for a day that might never come.

I told him we all had day dreams—phantasies—in which we saw ourselves doing big things in the world instead of the everyday things of our own work or profession. But if we wanted to be normal, everyday good citizens, we had to work most of the time and then we could dream the rest of the time. We were not entitled to dream and let someone else support us, unless we were sick or unable to work. In fact, he was not a real man if he would not work with hands or head.

After about six chats with him he found a job handling boxes, barrels, and other heavy objects, paid for his food and lodging; purchased some new clothes.

It was the actual physical work, something to occupy his mind, give him an appetite and a good night's rest that helped him to get hold of himself. There was little or no time left for day dreaming and the fact that he was taking his place in the world gave him the necessary assurance to face the world of reality.

Wallace Goes by His Own Guess, but Records Show Hitler Would Rejoice at Roosevelt's Re-election

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 1 — When Henry Wallace, vice presidential nominee, said the other day that Hitler would rejoice if Willkie were elected, he had only his own guess to go on, but the records show that if there is any rejoicing by the German fuehrer over the outcome of the American elections, it will come if President Roosevelt is reelected.

For the fact is Herr Hitler has outbluffed and outmaneuvered Mr. Roosevelt these last two years and is doubtless confident he can do it again. In fact, the neglected state of American defenses is directly due to the fact that Herr Hitler bluffed the President out of taking the advice of the one man in America whose knowledge of defense preparations was based on a first-hand study from the time he was chairman of the war industries board in the last war to the present day, namely, Bernard M Baruch.

Newspaper clippings will reveal that when Mr. Baruch came back from Europe just after the ill fated Munich conference and urged that America build up her defenses promptly, it looked for a while as if the President might take Mr. Baruch's advice. But the Berlin press began a vituperative campaign against Baruch as an "international banker and warmongerer," and from that day forward Baruch was side-tracked by the White House. He comes down every now and then for informal talks with the President, but he has never been given the job he should have had—coordinator of national defense—and his advice has gone unheeded.

More than two years ago, Mr. Baruch, in a series of memoranda addressed to high officials, revealed the state of our neglected defenses and pleaded for speed. Extracts from these documents were first published in "The United States News" on May 17th last, just after Holland and Belgium were invaded, but they become more pertinent now that America faces a perilous situation with a minimum amount of preparation.

On April 29, 1938, Mr. Baruch's memrandum says:

"The increased British budget shows that England has neglected for years to keep up her armaments and had to do in a short time, and therefore in an expensive manner, what is demanded in the present circumstances. Doubtless Hitler's and Mussolini's demands were met because England and France were not ready. You are aware of the condition of the American navy and of the army. Everyone knows what it is, except the American people, for surely the foreign governments know.

"I do not know whether the special machinery that is necessary for making powder has been bought. That should be top priority. Next should be the shortage in anti-aircraft and anti-tank and semi-automatic shoulder rifles, with a reserve of special machinery. Then airplanes and more airplanes."

Hitler has banked on these shortages, many of which still exist. After Munich, Mr. Baruch on his return from Europe addressed another memorandum to high officials in Washington, dated Oct. 11 ,1938:

"Two things stand out in the European crisis: (1)That Germany outmaneuvered the others in detaching Poland from a possible alliance against her. (2) and more important, England was tragically unprepared. Her navy would have been of no use except as a blockade. Aside from the fleet, everything else favored Germany tremendously. There is no doubt about her numerical superiority in the air as opposed to all the others.

"Any nation which gains supremacy in the air and can keep it places the other nations at a disadvantage because it would be impossible to build either airplanes or defenses when the factories are subject to constant raiding by a superior air force. Germany and Italy have received recognition of their power. It will take a long time to overcome this."

Then in the same memorandum, Mr. Baruch pleaded again:

"The condition of American defenses is unknown only to Americans. Every foreign power knows exactly what we are doing and what we lack. While Germany has been arming, she also has been busy spreading her ideologies among the nations of the world, sending her armaments and soldiers to inculcate her ideas and her discipline, and penetrating each and every country with her economic preachments. Is there any lesson for America in all this?"

The advice given by Mr. Baruch in this same memorandum of October 1938 was this:

"If the other countries endeavor to undermine us, we must meet that. No self-sufficiency or pride of present position is going to help us. We already see the result in England and France, both of which have sunk from the level of first-rate power to second-rate power, and, in the case of France, perhaps to the level of a third-rate power.

With Italy undermining France and England in western Asia and Africa, with Japan active in eastern Asia and with all three of them active in the Americas, it behooves us to sit up and take notice. The first thing to do is to prepare our defenses. We have not an adequate defense against any such combination as can readily face us."

It seems incredible that these prophetic lines were written two years ago when there was an opportunity for America to start at full speed on an industrial defense program that would have enabled us to play a decisive role in world affairs today. It was to Herr Hitler's interest to scare off such able advisers as Baruch, and he managed to do so. For, notwithstanding great friendship for Mr. Baruch, his plans and advice have not been heeded and he stands out today as did Winston Churchill in England as the man who in vain forewarned his country.

The pity of it is that Mr. Baruch, with characteristic modesty, never gave his views to the public. Indeed the memoranda above were not made available at his initiative, though they represent a devastating indictment of the incompetence of the present administration and raise the question of whether America in the next two years under the same leadership can expect any better results than it was able to get in the last two years.

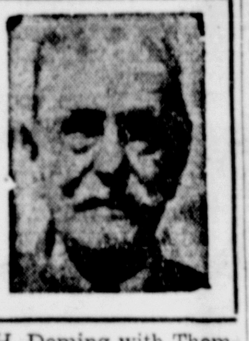
HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.



No. 162—Washington Irving

The flagship of the Hudson River Dayline fleet — the "Washington Irving"—is a steamboat that is better known to the present generation, although her whistle no longer echoes among the Highlands of the Hudson; for it was 14 years ago that the pride of the Dayline met with an accident which ended her career.

The steel hull of the "Washington Irving" was built by the New York Shipbuilding Company at Camden, N. J., in 1912. Her keel was 405 feet long with an overall lenth of 416 feet, six inches. She had a breadth of beam of 47 feet, over the guards she was 84 feet, and her hold was 23 feet, seven inches deep. The gross tonnage of the "Washington Irving" was 3,104 and net tonnage 1,664. Her engine was constructed by the W. & A. Fletcher Company Iron Works of Hoboken, N. J., and was the incline double expansion type with three cranks and three cylinders. Two of the cylinders measured 70 inches in diameter and the third measured 45 inches, with a seven foot stroke. Steam was supplied by four single and two double ended scotch boilers carrying 170 pounds of steam and generating 6,000 horsepower.

The flagship of the Hudson River Dayline was launched at Camden, N. J., on Saturday, December 7, 1912 — this date marking the 60th anniversary of the founding of the Dayline by Commodore Alfred Van Santvoord.

Destined exclusively for service as a day-boat between New York and Albany, the "Washington Irving" was by long odds the largest and most exquisitely furnished inland passenger vessel in the world. She had a passenger carrying capacity of 6,000, and made her first trip on Saturday, May 24, 1913, under the command of Captain David H. Deming with Thomas Hall as chief engineer.

Running in line with the Dayline fleet which consisted of the "Mary Powell," "Albany," "Robert Fulton," "Hendrick Hudson," and the "Alexander Hamilton," the "Washington Irving" continued in service on the Hudson river until June 1926 when she met with an accident which closed her career.

On June 1, 1926 the "Washington Irving" left her pier at the foot of Desbrosses street, New York, bound for Albany with 200 passengers aboard. A heavy fog made the visibility very poor and the whistle of the "Washington Irving" kept up a constant din as she left her berth and headed upriver. The pilots of other vessels were also experiencing difficulty in navigating due to the fog, and thus it happened that the tug "Thomas E. Moran" of the Moran Towing Company, hauling two iron oil barges, hove into sight of the "Washington Irving"—too close to avoid a collision. One of the barges struck the "Washington Irving" aft of the wheel on the port side—smashing the side in completely.

Captain David H. Deming, commander of the pride of the Dayline, realized immediately the seriousness of the accident and tied down the whistle of his vessel for the purpose of summoning aid from other craft in the harbor. Passengers were ordered to the top deck to don lifebelts, and the continuous blast of the "Washington Irving's" whistle soon brought more than a dozen other vessels to her side. The ill-fated dayboat reached a pier on the Jersey shore where passengers were able to scramble to safety. Two lives were lost in the accident—a Mrs. Arthur Hoag and her three-year-old daughter of Long Island City.

The "Washington Irving" sunk along side of the pier—coming to rest on the end of the Holland Vehicular Tunnel. On February 14, 1927 the vessel was raised and later taken to Bayonne, New Jersey where she was tied up. In September 1933 the wreck of the "Washington Irving" was sold for junk to the Northern Metal Company of Philadelphia where she was taken and broken up.

Housewives Learn to Buy Potatoes by Varieties

Albany, Sept. 30—Housewives, says Holton V. Noyes, Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture and Markets, are learning that it is good business when buying potatoes to talk to the dealer about varieties.

"Consumer purchasers of potatoes seem to be more conscious that ever about the variety they buy", Commissioner Noyes said. "I think that is a favorable sign because buying means more satisfied customers for our New York state potatoes. Some varieties are better adapted for certain uses than other varieties. Getting the right variety means that the house wife will avoid purchasing potatoes which she might find wasteful in preparing for the table. I think that if the purchaser finds a variety which appeals to her and which she finds well adapted to her uses, she should insist upon repeat orders of that variety as long as it is available."

Despite a common and widespread belief to the contrary, potatoes are less fattening than many products which are most commonly considered to be starchy, flesh-producing foods, adds the Department's information service for consumers.

"Don't exclude potatoes from your diet in order to retain that slim figure as long as you eat macaroni, rice, oatmeal, chocolate cake, pie or doughnuts", admonishes the information service.

Dietary importance of potatoes is explained in the foreword of a new information and recipe booklet, "Truth About Potatoes", which will be sent upon request to Consumers' Information, Department of Agriculture and Markets, Albany, N. Y.

Sydney, Australia—All telephone conversations in foreign languages—even French—are banned in Australia. The postmaster-general said: "If a person cannot talk English, he cannot use the telephone."

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

As readers of this column munch the products of the local bakers at their meals today, I wonder how many recall the days of 1917-18 when the bakers were forced to conserve white flour and turned out a bread that was dark in texture, but not so bad in taste, as I recall it. In other words the war bread sold in Kingston during the days of our entry into the first World War.

But while the folks at home were trying to recall which day was meatless, which fuelless, which lightless, and which some other "less day" they also did not forget to indulge in what pleasures were left.

In January of 1918, the thermometer dropped to an average of 20 below zero for an entire week, and the ice was so thick on the Rondout creek that the horse lovers of Kingston each Saturday afternoon would stage horse races on the ice.

If You Must Be Life of the Party (Political), Don't Plan to Draw Pay From Uncle Sam

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—When a law puts more than a million people on the spot, it's worth digging into.

If you know a hundred persons, the odds are you know someone who is affected by the Hatch act. Those affected are, for the first time really, finding themselves definitely on the spot.

In the national defense melee you may have missed all the hullabaloo about the Hatch act and its amendments. It is the statute which forbids, on pain of instant dismissal, any government employe or the employe of any state or local project financed in part or in whole by government funds from participating in almost any way in party politics.

Border Cases Must Wait

That includes so many people that the Civil Service Commission, which is charged with administering the act and prosecuting it in so far as civil service employes are concerned (something like 750,000) can't begin to enumerate the borderline cases. These won't be classified probably until the courts (on appeal from hearings) have had a whack at interpreting the law.

There are borderline violations, too, which hardly can be imagined until court precedence is established, but it won't take that to prove that the Hatch act has teeth. It has fangs in rows, and they are so sharp that any federal worker who gets over the years without getting his hide ripped off on them will have to pick his political way with caution.

The amended Hatch act (it's only a little more than two months old) not only made political activity verboten but provided for the Civil Service Commission to define "political activity." It was no dictionary job, you can bet, and it is just now that Chairman Harry B. Mitchell of the commission has gotten around to pointing out to the federal thousands just where some of these big, bad teeth are.

Can't Talk About It

For instance, any government worker caught on the job even discussing whether Wendell Willkie or F.D.R. will be the next President may find himself in the army of the unemployed forthwith. Under the Constitution, Congress can't take away the right of free speech off the job, but on the job—that's different.

A Hatch acter's free speech, even off the job, doesn't include making political speeches, seconding motions in political assemblies, saying yea or nay in political conventions, or otherwise talking out of turn about anything that has to do with party politics.

Election bets are out and to such an extent that even wagering a marshmallow flip on whether the sheriff will get in again might turn out to be one's cause of departure.

There'll be no more flute-tooting at political rallies either—that is, unless the worker is a member of a band that plays for hire and the politicians hire it in the regular manner. If government workers love a parade and the parade is political, they'll have to take it from the sidewalk . . . not from the reviewing stand or the line of march. They can't wear or distribute buttons or badges, pass out campaign literature, fiddle with campaign funds.

THE NAZI ARMADA

That story of the destruction of a great leet of Nazi convoy vessels in a storm, with he loss of 50,000 to 60,000 troops bound for nvasion of England, bears a striking resemblance to the history of the Spanish Armada which sailed against England in the year 1588. The main difference is that, whereas he Spanish fleet reached England and then was destroyed by the English fleet with the elp of a big storm, the German fleet never eally got started. The British air forces first ave it a drastic bombing and the storm did he rest.

Another rough parallel might be found in e fate of the great fleet of more than 1,000 rships which the Persian King Xerxes nt against the Greeks at Salamis in 480 C., which was destroyed by the Athenians der Themistocles with the help of a storm. at victory saved Athenian civilization and l to the flowering of the great Periclean e.

Unfortunately for glory and romance, re has been no corroboration of the great i disaster by British authorities. There s a bad storm, and there must have been ny vessels lost with their crews, but the y seems to have been greatly exaggerated.

eanwhile the fierce war of the British force against the convoy ships across the nnel and along the coast northward still inues. That prolonged fight itself may k in history as a big victory, though it is one episode in the great Battle of Britain.

PAN-AMERICANISM

his glorious hemisphere unity that we've rd so much about evidently requires quite w grains of salt. We are very far from g one big, happy family. A newspaper n who has just been down below, taking ank look at the other Americas and estiating their good-will and cooperativeness, ports:

"The neighborliness and amity of these ntries among themselves are a myth. All e acutely nationalistic, jealous of their persites and prestige and divided not only by onal interests but by temperament and dition.

"When the Argentines come to Brazil for oliday they are popularly referred to by Brazilians as 'brutes.' The easy-going zilian it not at home with the tougher, re enterprising Argentine. The national es of the two countries are persistently ground feuds involving spe-rom us, without any he form of money or r culture, for a way of urope."

o good when you face those us Americans have to "hang e hang separately." And with tolerance, and the fearful front ope and Asia now present to our sphere, we may yet come to unity and eration.

JAPAN'S GAINS

So Japan now has a definite military allince with the European dictators. And the emocracies can say, in the words of the nake charmer who brought the asp to Cleoatra to kill herself with, "I wish you much y of the worm."

The Japanese militarists, tackling another big real estate operation, and feeling a bit lonesome away off there alone, naturally derive some comfort from being lined up more definitely with the European hijackers. But it is not clear to outsiders just how their European pals are going to get much help to them, half a world away, with British sea ower holding the Atlantic and American sea ower holding the Pacific.

For the present, at least, it looks as if an is still "on her own", as much as ever. She has the additional handicap of losing her American war supplies. And Uncle Sam may soon be sitting pretty in the great British naval base at Singapore, barring Japanese expansion into the Philippines and the Dutch Indies, and insuring our own continued supply of rubber and tin.

CHEAPER LIVING

As our people embark upon a new and huge campaign of national defense, to be ready for any foreign peril that may threaten us, there is one material factor that is very reassuring. It is the comparative cheapness of our cost of living.

A current report of the Conference Board shows that the trend lately has been slightly downward, from a level which was already much lower than in 1929. Food prices are found to be 27.6 per cent less than they were in August of that year, clothing 26.6 per cent less, rents 5.5 per cent less, fuel and light 8.1 per cent less and sundries 1.7 per cent less.

When 1923 is assumed as a normal year, it is found that the all-round purchasing value of the dollar in August of this year was 118.3 cents, and apparently it is a little higher than that now.

Gibraltar, though a little wobbly, still seems to be regarded as a good insurance ad.

The dictators, who propose a "front of new empires," already have far too much front.

DAY DREAMING OR PHANTASY

I spent a number of hours trying to convince a young chap that remaining at home and dreaming of the great things he was "going to do" was not helping his parents who were poor and who could use any wages he could earn. While he was dreaming about what he was going to do in the future, they were giving him his board and lodging.

As I talked to him he used large words and quoted various authorities for his right to live his own life. I pointed out to him that everybody wanted to live their own lives and that sometimes I felt like going off on a long cruise around the world. However I knew I had a wife and family, that I had patients who believed that I helped them and they depended upon me. And so I continued at my work and tried to get a long trip every three or four years and at least two or three weeks' vacation every year besides. So it was up to him to work at anything with his hand or with his head, and so help his parents while he had his health instead of waiting for a day that might never come.

I told him we all had day dreams—phantasies—in which we saw ourselves doing big things in the world instead of the everyday things of our own work or profession. But if we wanted to be normal, everyday good citizens, we had to work most of the time and then we could dream the rest of the time. We were not entitled to dream and let someone else support us, unless we were sick or unable to work. In fact, he was not a real man if he would not work with hands or head.

After about six chats with him he found a job handling boxes, barrels, and other heavy objects, paid for his food and lodging; purchased some new clothes.

It was the actual physical work, something to occupy his mind, give him an appetite and a good night's rest that helped him to get hold of himself. There was little or no time left for day dreaming and the fact that he was taking his place in the world gave him the necessary assurance to face the world of reality.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 162—Washington Irving

The flagship of the Hudson River Dayline fleet — the "Washington Irving"—is a steamboat that is better known to the present generation, although her whistle no longer echoes among the Highlands of the Hudson; for it was 14 years ago that the pride of the Dayline met with an accident which ended her career.

The steel hull of the "Washington Irving" was built by the New York Shipbuilding Company at Camden, N. J., in 1912. Her keel was 405 feet long with an overall lenth of 416 feet, six inches. She had a breadth of beam of 47 feet, over the guards she was 84 feet, and her hold was 23 feet, seven inches deep. The gross tonnage of the "Washington Irving" was 3,104 and net tonnage 1,664. Her engine was constructed by the W. & A. Fletcher Company Iron Works of Hoboken, N. J., and was the incline double expansion type with three cranks and three cylinders. Two of the cylinders measured 70 inches in diameter and the third measured 45 inches, with a seven foot stroke. Steam was supplied by four single and two double ended scotch boilers carrying 170 pounds of steam and generating 6,000 horsepower.

The flagship of the Hudson River Dayline was launched at Camden, N. J., on Saturday, December 7, 1912 — this date marking the 60th anniversary of the founding of the Dayline by Commodore Alfred Van Santvoord.

Destined exclusively for service as a day-boat between New York and Albany, the "Washington Irving" was by long odds the largest and most exquisitely furnished inland passenger vessel in the world. She had a passenger carrying capacity of 6,000, and made her first trip on Saturday, May 24, 1913, under the command of Captain David H. Deming with Thomas Hall as chief engineer.

Running in line with the Dayline fleet which consisted of the "Mary Powell," "Albany," "Robert Fulton," "Hendrick Hudson," and the "Alexander Hamilton," the "Washington Irving" continued in service on the Hudson river until June 1926 when she met with an accident which closed her career.

On June 1, 1926 the "Washington Irving" left her pier at the foot of Desbrosses street, New York, bound for Albany with 200 passengers aboard. A heavy fog made the visibility very poor and the whistle of the "Washington Irving" kept up a constant din as she left her berth and headed upriver. The pilots of other vessels were also experiencing difficulty in navigating due to the fog, and thus it happened that the tug "Thomas E. Moran" of the Moran Towing Company, hauling two iron oil barges, hove into sight of the "Washington Irving"—too close to avoid a collision. One of the barges struck the "Washington Irving" aft of the wheel on the port side—smashing the side in completely.

Captain David H. Deming, commander of the pride of the Dayline, realized immediately the seriousness of the accident and tied down the whistle of his vessel for the purpose of summoning aid from other craft in the harbor. Passengers were ordered to the top deck to don lifebelts, and the continuous blast of the "Washington Irving's" whistle soon brought more than a dozen other vessels to her side. The ill-fated dayboat reached a pier on the Jersey shore where passengers were able to scramble to safety. Two lives were lost in the accident—a Mrs. Arthur Hoag and her three-year-old daughter of Long Island City.

The "Washington Irving" sunk along side of the pier—coming to rest on the end of the Holland Vehicular Tunnel. On February 14, 1927 the vessel was raised and later taken to Bayonne, New Jersey where she was tied up. In September 1933 the wreck of the "Washington Irving" was sold for junk to the Northern Metal Company of Philadelphia where she was taken and broken up.

Housewives Learn to Buy Potatoes by Varieties

Albany, Sept. 30—Housewives, says Holton V. Noyes, Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture and Markets, are learning that it is good business when buying potatoes to talk to the dealer about varieties.

"Consumer purchasers of potatoes seem to be more conscious that ever about the variety they buy", Commissioner Noyes said. "I think that is a favorable sign because buying means more satisfied customers for our New York state potatoes. Some varieties are better adapted for certain uses than other varieties. Getting the right variety means that the house wife will avoid purchasing potatoes which she might find wasteful in preparing for the table. I think that if the purchaser finds a variety which appeals to her and which she finds well adapted to her uses, she should insist upon repeat orders of that variety as long as it is available."

Despite a common and widespread belief to the contrary, potatoes are less fattening than many products which are most commonly considered to be starchy, flesh-producing foods, adds the Department's information service for consumers.

"Don't exclude potatoes from your diet in order to retain that slim figure as long as you eat macaroni, rice, oatmeal, chocolate cake, pie or doughnuts", admonishes the information service.

Dietary importance of potatoes is explained in the foreword of a new information and recipe booklet, "Truth About Potatoes", which will be sent upon request to Consumers' Information, Department of Agriculture and Markets, Albany, N. Y.

Wallace Goes by His Own Guess, but Records Show Hitler Would Rejoice at Roosevelt's Re-election

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 1 — When Henry Wallace, vice presidential nominee, said the other day that Hitler would rejoice if Willkie were elected, he had only his own guess to go on, but the records show that if there is any rejoicing by the German fuehrer over the outcome of the American elections, it will come if President Roosevelt is reelected.

For the fact is Herr Hitler has outbluffed and outmaneuvered Mr. Roosevelt these last two years and is doubtless confident he can do it again. In fact, the neglected state of American defenses is directly due to the fact that Herr Hitler bluffed the President out of taking the advice of the one man in America whose knowledge of defense preparations was based on a first-hand study from the time he was chairman of the war industries board in the last war to the present day, namely, Bernard M Baruch.

Newspaper clippings will reveal that when Mr. Baruch came back from Europe just after the ill-fated Munich conference and urged that America build up her defenses promptly, it looked for a while as if the President might take Mr. Baruch's advice. But the Berlin press began a vituperative campaign against Baruch as an "international banker and war-mongerer," and from that day forward Baruch was side-tracked by the White House. He comes down every now and then for informal talks with the President, but he has never been given the job he should have had—coordinator of national defense—and his advice has gone unheeded.

More than two years ago, Mr. Baruch, in a series of memoranda addressed to high officials, revealed the state of our neglected defenses and pleaded for speed. Extracts from these documents were first published in "The United States News" on May 17th last, just after Holland and Belgium were invaded, but they become more pertinent now that America faces a perilous situation with a minimum amount of preparation.

On April 29, 1938, Mr. Baruch's memrandum says:

"The increased British budget shows that England has neglected for years to keep up her armaments and had to do in a short time, and therefore in an expensive manner, what is demanded in the present circumstances. Doubtless Hitler's and Mussolini's demands were met because England and France were not ready. You are aware of the condition of the American navy and of the army. Everyone knows what it is, except the American people, for surely the foreign governments know.

"I do not know whether the special machinery that is necessary for making powder has been bought. That should be top priority. Next should be the shortage in anti-aircraft and anti-tank and semi-automatic shoulder rifles, with a reserve of special machinery. Then airplanes and more airplanes."

Hitler has banked on these shortages, many of which still exist. After Munich, Mr. Baruch on his return from Europe addressed another memorandum to high officials in Washington, dated Oct. 31, 1938:

"Two things stand out in the European crisis: (1)That Germany outmaneuvered the others in detaching Poland from a possible alliance against her. (2) and more important, England was tragically unprepared. Her navy would have been of no use except as a blockade. Aside from the fleet, everything else favored Germany tremendously. There is no doubt about her numerical superiority in the air as opposed to all the others.

"Any nation which gains supremacy in the air and can keep it places the other nations at a disadvantage because it would be impossible to build either airplanes or defenses when the factories are subject to constant raiding by a superior air force. Germany and Italy have received recognition of their power. It will take a long time to overcome this."

Then in the same memorandum, Mr. Baruch pleaded again:

"The condition of American defenses is unknown only to Americans. Every foreign power knows exactly what we are doing and what we lack. While Germany has been arming, she also has been busy spreading her ideologies among the nations of the world, sending her armaments and soldiers to inculcate her ideas and her discipline, and penetrating each and every country with her economic preachments. Is there any lesson for America in all this?"

The advice given by Mr. Baruch in this same memorandum of October 1938 was this:

"If the other countries endeavor to undermine us, we must meet that. No self-sufficiency or pride of present position is going to help us. We already see the result in England and France, both of which have sunk from the level of first-rate power to second-rate power, and, in the case of France, perhaps to the level of a third-rate power.

"With Italy undermining France and England in western Asia and Africa, with Japan active in eastern Asia and with all three of them active in the Americas, it behooves us to sit up and take notice. The first thing to do is to prepare our defenses. We have not an adequate defense against any such combination as can readily face us."

It seems incredible that these prophetic lines were written two years ago when there was an opportunity for America to start at full speed on an industrial defense program that would have enabled us to play a decisive role in world affairs today. It was to Herr Hitler's interest to scare off such able advisers as Baruch, and he managed to do so. For, notwithstanding great friendship for Mr. Baruch, his plans and advice have not been heeded and he stands out today as did Winston Churchill in England as the man who in vain forewarned his country.

The pity of it is that Mr. Baruch, with characteristic modesty, never gave his views to the public. Indeed the memoranda above were not made available at his initiative, though they represent a devastating indictment of the incompetence of the present administration and raise the question of whether America in the next two years under the same leadership can expect any better results than it was able to get in the last two years.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

As readers of this column munch the products of the local bakers at their meals today, I wonder how many recall the days of 1917-18 when the bakers were forced to conserve white flour and turned out a bread that was dark in texture, but not so bad in taste, as I recall it. In other words the war bread sold in Kingston during the days of our entry into the first World War.

But while the folks at home were trying to recall which day was meatless, which fuelless, which lightless, and which some other "less day" they also did not forget to indulge in what pleasures were left.

In January of 1918, the thermometer dropped to an average of 20 below zero for an entire week, and the ice was so thick on the Rondout creek that the horse lovers of Kingston each Saturday afternoon would stage horse races on the ice.

New Book Reports On Hague Machine

Ex-Democratic Lawmaker Alleges Secret Payrolls

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—Dr. Dayton D. McKean, former Democratic member of the New Jersey legislature, is the author of a book, "The Boss: The Hague Machine in Action," published today by Houghton Mifflin Co.

McKean, formerly a member of the faculty of Princeton University, and now of Dartmouth College, detailed in the book what he called the secret payrolls of Hudson county and of Jersey City where Frank Hague is mayor.

The county payroll, McKean said, included two organists at the county jail at $1,000 a year each and a superintendent of vacuum cleaners at $4,000.

The author said Jersey City's police and firemen were the highest paid in the United States, and the city was the highest taxed of those of more than 40,000 population in the country.

Clee Says Burning Of Records Proof Election Stolen

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 1 (AP)—Republican Lester H. Clee, defeated by Democratic Governor A. Harry Moore in 1937, asserted today burning of the 1937 Hudson county poll books was "conclusive proof" the election "was stolen in Hudson county."

Burning of the books last January was admitted by Deputy City Clerk Bernard J. Rosengard in an affidavit read at a court hearing yesterday. The books had been sought by Republicans in an effort to prove election irregularities in Hudson, Democratic stronghold of Mayor Frank Hague, state party leader.

After County Superintendent of Elections William E. Sewell, Republican, obtained a writ ordering production of poll records for the last four years, Rosengard stated the 1937 books were burned in accordance with a city legal department opinion that they could be destroyed two years after an election.

Sydney, Australia—A new bird of paradise with a body only nine inches long and a tail three feet long has been discovered in the Mount Hagen district of New Guinea. It has been named "McNicoll's ribbon-tailed bird of paradise" after Sir William McNicoll, Administrator of New Guinea, who sent the Sydney Museum a specimen. British and American collectors have spent much money and effort in recent years searching for new birds of paradise, and this is considered a particularly interesting find.

"THANK-YOU" NOTE FROM BRIDE IS IMPERATIVE BUT VERBAL THANKS FOR OTHER PRESENTS IS ENOUGH

This Is Emily Post's Reply to Girl Whose Aunt Expected Her to Write About Birthday Gift

To take time to look at a birthday or Christmas present and to show your appreciation is all that is usually necessary. The case of a bride is different. She is expected to send a note, in addition to thanking a person verbally, for two reasons: First, because she probably has very little chance to look at the present when it is sent to her among many others; second, because friends, as well as families, make considerable effort to give the nicest present they can afford—sometimes they go quite far beyond this. A birthday present, on the other hand, is probably a present much more casually chosen.

This "thank-you note" problem was encountered by a reader who asks: "It is necessary for a young girls to write a thank-you note for a present which her aunt gave her in person on her birthday? The girl opened the package and said "Thank you" and showed her delight, but did not write to the aunt after that. I understand the aunt thinks she ought to have written."

Unless it was a present of very great value (either sentimentally or intrinsically), thanking her as she did should have been quite enough.

The Messerschmitt fighter plane, crippled by anti-aircraft fire, struck in Windsor Great Park, which adjoins his estate. "I thought for a time that it was going to land on my home," Kennedy said. The ambassador said he believed the pilot was captured by soldiers, but added he "didn't know for sure."

New Book Reports On Hague Machine

Ex-Democratic Lawmaker Alleges Secret Payrolls

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—Dr. Dayton D. McKean, former Democratic member of the New Jersey legislature, is the author of a book, "The Boss: The Hague Machine in Action," published today by Houghton Mifflin Co.

McKean, formerly a member of the faculty of Princeton University, and now of Dartmouth College, detailed in the book what he called the secret payrolls of Hudson county and of Jersey City where Frank Hague is mayor.

The county payroll, McKean said, included two organists at the county jail at $1,000 a year each and a superintendent of vacuum cleaners at $4,000.

The author said Jersey City's police and firemen were the highest paid in the United States, and the city was the highest taxed of those of more than 40,000 population in the country.

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

by Rita Mohler Hanson

YESTERDAY. Beautiful Lynn Britton, who has come to Mongolia to visit at the court of a great prince, just has been escorted by Sherdock, a Lama, to the city of Pai Shu, and installed in a beautiful apartment to await the coming of the Prince's friend, Temu Darin.

Chapter Five

Temu Arrives

"I YOU slavee," the little Chinese maid repeated, drawing out a chair at a table laid for a meal.

"What's your name?" Lynn asked, accepting the chair.

The maid uttered choking sounds that suggested the clucking in a chicken yard. Lynn tried to repeat the syllables and failed. She sat back, gazing about the room, at the gorgeous Chinese rugs on the floor, the priceless polished furniture. There was a strange, uncommon fragrance in the place that excited and frightened her.

"I feel like a slave myself," she murmured and wondered if she and the maid were locked in the room.

Servants then came through the door carrying red lacquer trays. In a sea-green bowl, they served her steaming breasts of chicken and walnut halves, to be eaten with ivory chopsticks; mushroom soup, sweet and salt and sour; red cabbage and pigeon eggs; white rice in a sky-blue bowl.

Temu stirred her as no man had.

They poured her tea into a fine white porcelain cup with a silver saucer and a cover in the shape of a pagoda roof, set with turquoise and rose sapphire. Lynn tasted everything though she ate very little, hoping to hide her fears from the servants.

Hearing a commotion in the courtyard, she pushed her tea aside and hastened to the window. Temu Darin's grey Arabian horse, covered with lather, was being led away, yet dancing with impatience that he could run no more. As the maid answered a knock at the door, Lynn caught herself pushing up the wave in her hair and biting more color into her lips.

Temu Darin came in, tall and broad-shouldered in Mongol garb, a quilted cloak of rich, plum-colored silk held snug about his waist by a wide leather belt, and heavy trousers tucked into pliable leather boots turned up at the toes to accommodate the Mongol stirrup. He was alone.

Removing a winged fur cap with wrought-gold buttons, he bowed to Lynn. There was none of the emotion of the night before in his sun-bronzed face with its peculiar scar. Rather, a sense of caution and waiting that somehow frightened her.

Chinese From Harvard

"MISS LYNN BRITTON?" His voice, trained in the temple chant, came sure and deep and flexible. His accent, if any, was Harvard.

"You're Temu Darin," she responded quickly. "My brother told me." Lynn would have offered her hand but he had clasped his fingers in his cuffs, Chinese fashion, and bowed again. She felt repulsed.

"What else did your brother tell you, if I may ask?"

"He told me you were a friend of the Prince of Shani Lun."

The man's eyes narrowed, strangely dominating eyes, she noticed, the color of Chinese tea strongly brewed.

"Isn't it true?" she demanded, sensing a mystery here.

He spoke strongly. "It is true, I am the Prince's friend. But is your brother his friend?"

"He—he spoke highly of the Prince," she answered uncertainly, wondering what it was he expected her to know that she didn't know.

"And how did he speak of me—the Prince's friend?"

"He——" Lynn stopped, her eyes flashing. "Sherdock told me you intended to bring my brother with you."

Temu Darin retorted grimly. "Had I found him I would have brought him."

Lynn's heart sank. The man strode over to the window and glanced out.

"What is it all about?" she demanded, and before she could check herself spoke from the heart, "What a fool I was to come to this dreadful place!"

He turned and gazed at her a moment in silence. "You came because you couldn't help yourself."

Lynn whitened. "You mean I am a prisoner?"

"I mean it was your destiny to come."

She stared starkly, "Are we in disgrace because we entered the temple last night? It is all my fault." He moved to the opposite side of the table from her, holding her eyes with his.

"It is evident," he replied, looking his most Oriental, "that you have not yet learned the twenty-five examples of family piety."

Lynn felt for a moment that he might be making fun of her, this young man who had been educated in America. But his expression was unreadable. "Family piety?" she repeated.

Strange Welcome

"YOUR brother stated in his letter that though head of the family he could not control your actions; that you are an extremely head-strong girl."

Lynn flared, "You people of the East find it hard to tolerate a girl who calls her soul her own."

His glance fell to her mouth and then sought her eyes again. It had lightened as if at last he found something to please and amuse him. "On the contrary, we are very glad to have you here."

It was then that Lynn saw the man's hands were trembling. The sight terrified her inexpressibly—this tall, strong young man of civilized training and primitive blood so stirred by some strange depth of emotion concerning her.

She found herself gripping the charm box that hung round her neck as if she were clinging to a raft in a raging sea. He watched her with hypnotic intensity, his eyes blank, inscrutable, following her every gesture. Hardly knowing what she did she took out the sprig of white lilac.

"Do you know anything about this?" she asked, keeping her voice steady with an effort.

"The box came from the palace museum," he said. "It is centuries old."

She kept her eyes on the token. "But the twig—could anyone have put the twig into the box especially for me?"

"Has it a special meaning for you?" Something in his tone caused her to look up and meet his eyes. The next instant she was walking around the table towards him, drawn as if by an invisible cord, and facing him, paused so close that her skirt touched his garments.

"Has it a special meaning for you?" he repeated, urging, asking, demanding a response to some larger issue that seemed to inclose this question.

Lynn forced herself to step back and escape the field of his magnetism. A new expression, swift as a sheet of lightning, flashed over his face, as if he'd come to some decision.

He moved away and picked up his hat, steeling his features to impassivity. "I shall inquire if a message has come from your brother." He left after a word in Chinese to the little maid.

Trouble

Some persons seem to be born trouble-makers. ... And that's about all they accomplish, because trouble is usually produced by those who don't produce anything else....That's the poorest investment one can make of any talent he may have.

Agatha—He wore my photograph over his heart during the war, and it stopped a bullet.

Hiram—I'm not surprised, dear. It would stop anything.

Snipped from the Atchison, Kans., Globe: "People used to wonder how they would get through the winter financially. Now they wonder how they will get through the summer, fall, winter and spring."

Andy—How's Lady Luck been treating you lately?

Sambo—Not a-tall well, Andy. I'se done wore out three foots from graveyard rabbits, and I'se almost come to the conclusion dat I'll have to go to work.

Definitions not in Webster's:

Pessimist—One who, when he has the choice of two evils, takes both.

Cynic—One who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing.

Optimist—One who looks out in the dark and sees a light which isn't there. A pessimist is one who blows the light out.

Bore—A man who, when asked about his health, tells you all about it.

This case seems settled in advance:

Grace—If ever I married, you would be the last man I should take.

Robert—If ever I married, you would be the last woman I should take.

Grace—Gosh—in that case we would be sure to come together.

It is not the things which have happened which worry most people. It is the things which they fear may happen—and only a part of these will actually occur.

A fine old veteran well on his eighties was told that a friend of his, 75, had said that a man was at his best in the seventies; quite a respectable sentiment, too, one would have thought. But the octogenarian would have none of it. "He'll know better when he grows up," was his comment.

You could be born, married, dead and buried and not many would know about it—only for your old home town paper.

Father—It says here in the paper that an astrologer predicts that the world will come to an end next Christmas.

Son—Will it be before or after dinner?

Nowadays there are few runaway horses but we still have runaway tongues.

It is always well to know your stuff:

Husband—I've got a surprise for you, my dear. I've varnished the kitchen floor while you were out.

Wife—And I have a surprise for you, darling. You've used a jar of golden syrup to do it with.

"It's the men behind who 'make' the man ahead."—Merle Crowell.

We hope the janitor got back in time:

Fred—Who is the close-mouthed fellow over there?

Jake—He ain't close-mouthed. He's just waiting for the janitor to come back with the spittoon.

When we see something priced at $199.95 we always wonder what becomes of that nickel.

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

by Rita Mohler Hanson

YESTERDAY. Beautiful Lynn Britton, who has come to Mongolia to visit at the court of a great prince, just has been escorted by Sherdock, a Lama, to the city of Pai Shu, and installed in a beautiful apartment to await the coming of the Prince's friend, Temu Darin.

Chapter Five

Temu Arrives

"I YOU slavee," the little Chinese maid repeated, drawing out a chair at a table laid for a meal.

"What's your name?" Lynn asked, accepting the chair.

The maid uttered choking sounds that suggested the clucking in a chicken yard. Lynn tried to repeat the syllables and failed. She sat back, gazing about the room, at the gorgeous Chinese rugs on the floor, the priceless polished furniture. There was a strange, uncommon fragrance in the place that excited and frightened her.

"I feel like a slave myself," she murmured and wondered if she and the maid were locked in the room.

Servants then came through the door carrying red lacquer trays. In a sea-green bowl, they served her steaming breasts of chicken and walnut halves, to be eaten with ivory chopsticks; mushroom soup, sweet and salt and sour; red cabbage and pigeon eggs; white rice in a sky-blue bowl.

They poured her tea into a fine white porcelain cup with a silver saucer and a cover in the shape of a pagoda roof, set with turquoise and rose sapphire. Lynn tasted everything though she ate very little, hoping to hide her fears from the servants.

Hearing a commotion in the courtyard, she pushed her tea aside and hastened to the window. Temu Darin's grey Arabian horse, covered with lather, was being led away, yet dancing with impatience that he could run no more. As the maid answered a knock at the door, Lynn caught herself pushing up the wave in her hair and biting more color into her lips.

Temu Darin came in, tall and broad-shouldered in Mongol garb, a quilted cloak of rich, plum-colored silk held snug about his waist by a wide leather belt, and heavy trousers tucked into pliable leather boots turned up at the toes to accommodate the Mongol stirrup. He was alone.

Removing a winged fur cap with wrought-gold buttons, he bowed to Lynn. There was none of the emotion of the night before in his sun-bronzed face with its peculiar scar. Rather, a sense of caution and waiting that somehow frightened her.

Chinese From Harvard

"MISS LYNN BRITTON?" His voice, trained in the temple chant, came sure and deep and flexible. His accent, if any, was Harvard.

"You're Temu Darin," she responded quickly. "My brother told me." Lynn would have offered her hand but he had clasped his fingers in his cuffs, Chinese fashion, and bowed again. She felt repulsed.

"What else did your brother tell you, if I may ask?"

"He told me you were a friend of the Prince of Shani Lun."

The man's eyes narrowed, strangely dominating eyes, she noticed, the color of Chinese tea strongly brewed.

"Isn't it true?" she demanded, sensing a mystery here.

He spoke strongly. "It is true, I am the Prince's friend. But is your brother his friend?"

"He—he spoke highly of the Prince," she answered uncertainly, wondering what it was he expected her to know that she didn't know.

"And how did he speak of me—the Prince's friend?"

"He——" Lynn stopped, her eyes flashing. "Sherdock told me you intended to bring my brother with you."

Temu Darin retorted grimly. "Had I found him I would have brought him."

Lynn's heart sank. The man strode over to the window and glanced out.

"What is it all about?" she demanded, and before she could check herself spoke from the heart, "What a fool I was to come to this dreadful place!"

He turned and gazed at her a moment in silence. "You came because you couldn't help yourself."

Lynn whitened. "You mean I am a prisoner?"

"I mean it was your destiny to come."

She stared starkly, "Are we in disgrace because we entered the temple last night? It is all my fault." He moved to the opposite side of the table from her, holding her eyes with his.

"It is evident," he replied, looking his most Oriental, "that you have not yet learned the twenty-five examples of family piety."

Lynn felt for a moment that he might be making fun of her, this young man who had been educated in America. But his expression was unreadable. "Family piety?" she repeated.

Temu stirred her as no man had.

Strange Welcome

"YOUR brother stated in his letter that though head of the family he could not control your actions; that you are an extremely head-strong girl."

Lynn flared. "You people of the East find it hard to tolerate a girl who calls her soul her own."

His glance fell to her mouth and then sought her eyes again. It had lightened as if at last he found something to please and amuse him. "On the contrary, we are very glad to have you here."

It was then that Lynn saw the man's hands were trembling. The sight terrified her inexpressibly—this tall, strong young man of civilized training and primitive blood so stirred by some strange depth of emotion concerning her.

She found herself gripping the charm box that hung round her neck as if she were clinging to a raft in a raging sea. He watched her with hypnotic intensity, his eyes blank, inscrutable, following her every gesture. Hardly knowing what she did she took out the sprig of white lilac.

"Do you know anything about this?" she asked, keeping her voice steady with an effort.

"The box came from the palace museum," he said. "It is centuries old."

She kept her eyes on the token. "But the twig—could anyone have put the twig into the box especially for me?"

"Has it a special meaning for you?" Something in his tone caused her to look up and meet his eyes. The next instant she was walking around the table towards him, drawn as if by an invisible cord, and facing him, paused so close that her skirt touched his garments.

"Has it a special meaning for you?" he repeated, urging, asking, demanding a response to some larger issue that seemed to inclose this question.

Lynn forced herself to step back and escape the field of his magnetism. A new expression, swift as a sheet of lightning, flashed over his face, as if he'd come to some decision.

He moved away and picked up his hat, steeling his features to impassivity. "I shall inquire if a message has come from your brother." He left after a word in Chinese to the little maid.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

No Secrets Here

Fredericksburg, Va. — Winifred L. Watkins of Richmond and Winifred L. Watkins of Birmingham, Mich., are having a tough time as freshmen at Mary Washington College here.

"I've a letter from your boy friend," said the Richmond Miss Watkins to Miss Watkins of Michigan.

"And I've got a letter from your boy friend," replied the latter.

Seedy Trick

Indianapolis—A traveling salesman sold Mrs. D. L. Cowser some seeds he said would grow "water orchids."

Now she would like to see him again. The seeds produced milkweed.

Nicked Neck

Spokane, Wash.—Marion Hogan peeked out of the elevator he operates, touched the starting handle and the divided doors snapped on his neck.

For 20 minutes he gaped at a crowd gathered outside while a building engineer climped into the elevator through a trap door at the top and removed the doors.

Hogan emerged "unhurt but uncomfortable."

Haste Makes

Kansas City, Kas.—Harold McKain, given a summons for speeding, told the arresting officer he was hurrying to police court—to answer another summons for speeding.

Judge Edmund B. Smith fined him $7.50 for the first summons and $5 for the second. There was seven miles difference in speed.

After Effects

Lincoln, Neb.—Judd Woods and [illegible]ll Dietz didn't mind so much [illegible]hen the car in front of them [illegible]ck a skunk, tossing full bene[illegible] of the perfume to them. But [illegible]hen they got home:

The garageman refused to store the car until it had been washed.

Woods' dog got under the bed—and stayed.

And Dietz had to sleep in a shed back of his apartment house.

"TRELAWNY," by Margaret Armstrong

When Margaret Armstrong wrote her "Fanny Kemble," she unavoidably discovered Fanny's friend Trelawny, the "original" who tried to swim the Niagara river and was put out because it was too strong for him. Apparently Miss Armstrong succumbed to Trelawny's charm on the spot, and at once started back through time to learn what made him tick. She learned a good deal, her chief sources being somewhat dubious ones written by her hero himself. Today she is publishing "Trelawny," in which she tells all.

It is a good job, this biography, because it almost forces the reader to accept Miss Armstrong's measure of her hero. It recreates with skill the first three quarters of the century preceding the current one, and covers a large share of the world without reading like a geography text. What was probably the most difficult task of all, however, is not any of these, but the odd success Miss Armstrong has with the numerous violent scenes of Trelawny's earlier life.

Interesting within limits. As long as your nose is in the book you feel some sympathy for Trelawny. The moment you look up at the surroundings, at your piano, your easy chair, your pictures, you realize that Trelawny was a plain fool and rather vicious to boot. Miss Armstrong would have you believe that he was a nice little English boy from Cornwall, driven to violence and worse by the harshness of his father and the lack of love in his home. She may have better authority, but the only one she cites which covers the entire period of Trelawny himself; it seems strange that Trelawny whose later life proves him a blusterer, a brawler, a lecher, a murderer and a thief, should be believed on the events of his childhood as against parents, neighbors, teachers and logic.

He deserted ship after crippling a superior officer for life, stabbed a few people, became a pirate, murdered Heaven knows how many, married an Arab girl by accident, lost her by poison, became the friend of Shelley (!) and of another "original," to wit Lord Byron, fought for Greek independence, came to America and interefered in the slavery question, met Fanny Kemble—so on, and so on. It reads like a set of variations on the theme of mental instability, and reads well.

Chimney pots help decorate a house. Manufactured in dozens of styles and sizes, there is a chimney pot for every house that boasts a chimney — and what house doesn't? These suit various house "moods"; they may appear jaunty, demure, pert, dignified, hoary, classic, squat, homey, svelte, old-fashioned, modern or romantic. Or they may be just plaint chimney pots. One of these, built into the chimney top, not only improves the functioning of the chimney, but also improves the appearance of the roof.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Dr. H. W. Keator, president of the Ulster-Greene Council, will again serve as general chairman for the 1940 annual finance campaign. Dr. Keator reports that plans are nearly complete for the campaign to start in the six outlying districts during the week of October 7, and the Kingston district on October 14. The plans call for every community to be finished by October 25.

The following men are heading up their respective districts and communities: Northern District, Scott M. Ellis, Greenville; George Smith, Coxsackie; Russell Colton, Cairo; William Clark, Athens; John Merchant and Dr. M. Hammond, Catskill.

Mountain District, J. Frank Lackey, Tannersville; C. Hoyt, Hunter; Val Morrow, Maplecrest; A. B. Woodworth, Hensonville; D. Munson, Windham; James Russell, Ashland; I. Shaver, Prattsville; and Donovan Brockett as district chairman.

Western District, Fred D. Cure, Pine Hill; William Cruickshank, Big Indian; Edward West, Allaben and Shandaken; O. Eislie, West Shokan.

Saugerties District, Fred Toms, Woodstock; John Sauer, Saugerties; J. Rogers, West Saugerties.

Rondout Valley District, Ruben Benson, Ellenville; William Oakley, Napanoch.

Southern District, Dr. Salvatore, Highland; Karl Ernst and Ken Taber, Milton; Edward Dalby, Marlborough; Gordon Pine, New Paltz; William McEllenney, Gardiner.

Kingston District, George Matthews, Kingston; William Buddenhagen, Port Ewen; George Westerfield, Hurley.

There are still a few communities that will report their chairman during the coming week. Victor Roth, treasurer of the council, is serving as chairman of the special gifts committee and this group will start with a meeting October 3. The Council during the past two years has reduced its total indebtedness from $5,500 to $2,900, and the goal for the 1940 campaign is to raise $7,415 for the operating budget and a minimum of $1,300 to reduce the debt but all contributions over the $7,415 will be applied on the debt.

The enrollment of troops and scouts has grown during the past years until now we are serving 51 Troops and 1,045 Scouts and to do this more effectively, there should be additional staff, but until the debt is paid this will be impossible. Thus Dr. Keator is urging every community to do its best so that we may accomplish our goal of being free of debt by 1941, and if possible, sooner.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

No Secrets Here

Fredericksburg, Va. — Winifred L. Watkins of Richmond and Winifred L. Watkins of Birmingham, Mich., are having a tough time as freshmen at Mary Washington College here.

"I've a letter from your boy friend," said the Richmond Miss Watkins to Miss Watkins of Michigan.

"And I've got a letter from your boy friend," replied the latter.

Seedy Trick

Indianapolis—A traveling salesman sold Mrs. D. L. Cowser some seeds he said would grow "water orchids."

Now she would like to see him again. The seeds produced milkweed.

Nicked Neck

Spokane, Wash.—Marion Hogan peeked out of the elevator he operates, touched the starting handle and the divided doors snapped on his neck.

For 20 minutes he gaped at a crowd gathered outside while a building engineer climped into the elevator through a trap door at the top and removed the doors.

Hogan emerged "unhurt but uncomfortable."

Haste Makes

Kansas City, Kas.—Harold McKain, given a summons for speeding, told the arresting officer he was hurrying to police court—to answer another summons for speeding.

Judge Edmund B. Smith fined him $7.50 for the first summons and $5 for the second. There was seven miles difference in speed.

After Effects

Lincoln, Neb.—Judd Woods and Bill Dietz didn't mind so much when the car in front of them struck a skunk, tossing full benefit of the perfume to them. But when they got home:

The garageman refused to store the car until it had been washed.

Woods' dog got under the bed—and stayed.

And Dietz had to sleep in a shed back of his apartment house.

"TRELAWNY," by Margaret Armstrong

When Margaret Armstrong wrote her "Fanny Kemble," she unavoidably discovered Fanny's friend Trelawny, the "original" who tried to swim the Niagara river and was put out because it was too strong for him. Apparently Miss Armstrong succumbed to Trelawny's charm on the spot, and at once started back through time to learn what made him tick. She learned a good deal, her chief sources being somewhat dubious ones written by her hero himself. Today she is publishing "Trelawny," in which she tells all.

It is a good job, this biography, because it almost forces the reader to accept Miss Armstrong's measure of her hero. It recreates with skill the first three quarters of the century preceding the current one, and covers a large share of the world without reading like a geography text. What was probably the most difficult task of all, however, is not any of these, but the odd success Miss Armstrong has with the numerous violent scenes of Trelawny's earlier life.

Interesting within limits. As long as your nose is in the book you feel some sympathy for Trelawny. The moment you look up at the surroundings, at your piano, your easy chair, your pictures, you realize that Trelawny was a plain fool and rather vicious to boot. Miss Armstrong would have you believe that he was a nice little English boy from Cornwall, driven to violence and worse by the harshness of his father and the lack of love in his home. She may have better authority, but the only one she cites which covers the entire period of Trelawny himself; it seems strange that Trelawny whose later life proves him a blusterer, a brawler, a lecher, a murderer and a thief, should be believed on the events of his childhood as against parents, neighbors, teachers and logic.

He deserted ship after crippling a superior officer for life, stabbed a few people, became a pirate, murdered Heaven knows how many, married an Arab girl by accident, lost her by poison, became the friend of Shelley (!) and of another "original," to wit Lord Byron, fought for Greek independence, came to America and interefered in the slavery question, met Fanny Kemble—so on, and so on. It reads like a set of variations on the theme of mental instability, and reads well.

Chimney pots help decorate a house. Manufactured in dozens of styles and sizes, there is a chimney pot for every house that boasts a chimney — and what house doesn't? These suit various house "moods"; they may appear jaunty, demure, pert, dignified, hoary, classic, squat, homey, svelte, old-fashioned, modern or romantic. Or they may be just plaint chimney pots. One of these, built into the chimney top, not only improves the functioning of the chimney, but also improves the appearance of the roof.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Dr. H. W. Keator, president of the Ulster-Greene Council, will again serve as general chairman for the 1940 annual finance campaign. Dr. Keator reports that plans are nearly complete for the campaign to start in the six outlying districts during the week of October 7, and the Kingston district on October 14. The plans call for every community to be finished by October 25.

The following men are heading up their respective districts and communities: Northern District, Scott M. Ellis, Greenville; George Smith, Coxsackie; Russell Colton, Cairo; William Clark, Athens; John Merchant and Dr. M. Hammond, Catskill.

Mountain District, J. Frank Lackey, Tannersville; C. Hoyt, Hunter; Val Morrow, Maplecrest; A. B. Woodworth, Hensonville; D. Munson, Windham; James Russell, Ashland; I. Shaver, Prattsville; and Donovan Brockett as district chairman.

Western District, Fred D. Cure, Pine Hill; William Cruickshank, Big Indian; Edward West, Allaben and Shandaken; O. Eislie, West Shokan.

Saugerties District, Fred Toms, Woodstock; John Sauer, Saugerties; J. Rogers, West Saugerties.

Rondout Valley District, Ruben Benson, Ellenville; William Oakley, Napanoch.

Southern District, Dr. Salvatore, Highland; Karl Ernst and Ken Taber, Milton; Edward Dalby, Marlborough; Gordon Pine, New Paltz; William McEllenney, Gardiner.

Kingston District, George Matthews, Kingston; William Buddenhagen, Port Ewen; George Westerfield, Hurley.

There are still a few communities that will report their chairman during the coming week. Victor Roth, treasurer of the council, is serving as chairman of the special gifts committee and this group will start with a meeting October 3. The Council during the past two years has reduced its total indebtedness from $5,500 to $2,900, and the goal for the 1940 campaign is to raise $7,415 for the operating budget and a minimum of $1,300 to reduce the debt but all contributions over the $7,415 will be applied on the debt.

The enrollment of troops and scouts has grown during the past years until now we are serving 51 Troops and 1,045 Scouts and to do this more effectively, there should be additional staff, but until the debt is paid this will be impossible. Thus Dr. Keator is urging every community to do its best so that we may accomplish our goal of being free of debt by 1941, and if possible, sooner.

State Dairy Group Favors Adoption Of New Price Rule

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Representatives of more than 40,000 dairymen in the New York milk shed affiliated with the Metropolitan Bargaining Agency today unanimously approved five resolutions recommending changes in the federal-state marketing order for consideration at the series of public hearings starting in New York October 7.

The meeting of the agency's delegate body was one of the best attended and most enthusiastic in that organization's history. Full and complete cooperation was pledged by every delegate from all of the 55 cooperative organizations represented.

Resolutions Given

The resolutions approved by the delegates for presentation to the federal and state authorities were:

Establishment of a price of $2.82 per cwt. or six cents per quart for Class I milk throughout the year.

Establishment of a new system for fixing the price of milk used in the manufacture of cheese under which the present system of fixing this price by quotations from three leading markets would be abolished and replaced by a schedule fixed by the New York state commissioner of agriculture based upon actual sales prices of cheese in this milk shed.

Establishment of a program for payments by handlers into the producers settlement fund every ten days instead of every 30 days.

The skim milk proposal provides for an increase in producers' returns of 4c per cwt. upon the six classifications to which it applies.

Redefines the word producer as used in the marketing orders to provide that no dairyman was delivering to a plant under board of health approval during the last quarter of 1939 shall be barred from the benefits of the order by removal of that plant from the board of health approval.

Most Important

Most important of these resolutions from the producers' standpoint was the one asking a minimum price of $2.82 per cwt. for Class I milk throughout the year. In its original petition the agency had suggested a schedule of $2.35 per cwt. for April, May, June and July, and $2.82 for the other eight months of the year. Decision to eliminate the $2.35 provision was based upon statewide reports of crops ruined by frosts, of increased labor costs and additional expenses necessitated by new regulations of the New York city board of health. All these factors contributed toward a material increase in costs of production for all dairymen.

The proposal for changing the system of fixing the price of milk used in cheese manufacture, the delegates decided, was necessary to eliminate criticism from some quarters against the present method and to establish a fair and equitable system based upon actual sales prices of cheese in this milk shed rather than upon quotations offered by dealers in widely separated sections of the country.

The agency suggestion for an amendment providing ten day payments by dealers into the producers settlement fund is a renewal of a similar suggestion made at the public hearings on the market order last March, for the protection of producers.

The skim milk differential, originally proposed by the Bargaining Agency at the last hearing, has been found after experience to be one of the provisions in the order where prices could be increased. Therefore, after scientific investigation of the market, the Bargaining Agency has, by the addition of skim milk powder for human consumption to the classifications, brought about a proposal that should prove of benefit to producers. This, together with the proposed cheese diversion change, is intended to carry out the Barganing Agency's policy to obtain higher prices for producers by increasing surplus prices wherever that can be done without losing the market.

Evidence Prepared

Immediately after adoption of the resolutions the agency's legal committee plunged into the task of preparing evidence to substantiate their claims as to why all of these recommendations should be approved by the federal government and incorporated into the market order governing the sale of milk in the metropolitan area.

"These suggestions for the revision of the order, declared Ralph C. Norton, president of the agency, "are being submitted to the federal and state governments after exhaustive investigation by the agency into conditions in our milk shed as they exist today.

"We know that all of them will be given fair and careful consideration as our suggestions have been given in the past and we are sure that the evidence we will present will result in greater benefits to our 43,000 members.

"Never before have I seen our dairymen so united and so anxious to co-operate as they are at the present time. All of them realize what the order has accomplished and are confident that by proceeding in this legal, orderly way, even greater beneficial results can be attained for themselves and dealers alike."

Profits Tax Bill Creates Interest

Provisions of Measure Are Studied by Analysts

Much interest is centering just now in the provisions of the excess profits tax bill which was finally approved Sunday by the House-Senate conference committee. Analysis of the provisions of the bill indicates that the invested capital plan of computing profits —one of two alternative plans— will be of considerable benefit to those corporations which had poor earnings during recent years.

Only corporations which earned less than eight per cent on capital during those years will use this plan. Others will prefer the average earnings method, where credits amount to the average realized during the four base period years, 1936-39, reduced by five per cent.

U. S. Steel is one of the corporations expected to benefit by the invested capital method and apparently can make substantial increase over earnings for any recent year without having excess profits under the terms of the bill. However, industry's total tax bill this year will be increased considerably by the increase in the normal tax rate provided for in the measure. One industry, which will be hit particularly hard this year is aircraft manufacturing, as sales and earnings have increased sharply.

Car service division of the Association of American Railroads recommends that the railroads of the nation purchase approximately 100,000 new freight cars during the next 12 months. Recommendation is based on a recent survey of prospective equipment needs, both for commercial demands and for the expanding defense program.

August net operating income of Class I railroads totaled $66,014,798 compared with $54,567,356 in August last year.

Steel operations for the week beginning September 30 are scheduled at 92.6 per cent of capacity vs. 92.5 per cent in preceding week.

American Woolen Co. advanced prices on woolen and worsted goods five cents a yard and on tropical and blended lines two and a half cents a yard.

Stocks moved a little higher Monday. Volume continued low, total being 403,070 shares. The Dow-Jones industrials moved up .32 point, to close at 132.64; rails gained .12, to 28.52, and utilities advanced .04, to 21.69.

American woolen issues were strong on announcement of another price advance. The preferred issue was among the list of 15 most active stocks and moved up three points, while the common gained a half. Pressed Steel Car led the active list, up ½ on turnover of 11,000 shares. Pullman was active and gained 1½, as was American Car & Foundry, up 1⅜.

September was a poor month for the brokers, although better than July and August. Total volume for the month was 11,940,210 shares, compared with 57,091,430 shares in September, 1939.

Commodities resumed the advance in progress at the close of last week and the index gained 0.19 point Monday, to 53.42, best level since last June. Wool tops feature the advance, gaining six to 26 points. Sugar prices strengthened, closing with gains of two to three points. Raw sugars held firm on a basis of 2.75 cents a pound and upward. Wheat was irregular and closed unchanged to up ⅝ cent a bushel. Cotton also was irregular, October contracts closing four points lower, while the rest of the list was one higher to one lower.

State Dairy Group Favors Adoption Of New Price Rule

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Representatives of more than 40,000 dairymen in the New York milk shed affiliated with the Metropolitan Bargaining Agency today unanimously approved five resolutions recommending changes in the federal-state marketing order for consideration at the series of public hearings starting in New York October 7.

The meeting of the agency's delegate body was one of the best attended and most enthusiastic in that organization's history. Full and complete cooperation was pledged by every delegate from all of the 55 cooperative organizations represented.

Resolutions Given

The resolutions approved by the delegates for presentation to the federal and state authorities were:

Establishment of a price of $2.82 per cwt. or six cents per quart for Class I milk throughout the year.

Establishment of a new system for fixing the price of milk used in the manufacture of cheese under which the present system of fixing this price by quotations from three leading markets would be abolished and replaced by a schedule fixed by the New York state commissioner of agriculture based upon actual sales prices of cheese in this milk shed.

Establishment of a program for payments by handlers into the producers settlement fund every ten days instead of every 30 days.

The skim milk proposal provides for an increase in producers' returns of 4c per cwt. upon the six classifications to which it applies.

Redefines the word producer as used in the marketing orders to provide that no dairyman was delivering to a plant under board of health approval during the last quarter of 1939 shall be barred from the benefits of the order by removal of that plant from the board of health approval.

Most Important

Most important of these resolutions from the producers' standpoint was the one asking a minimum price of $2.82 per cwt. for Class I milk throughout the year. In its original petition the agency had suggested a schedule of $2.35 per cwt. for April, May, June and July, and $2.82 for the other eight months of the year. Decision to eliminate the $2.35 provision was based upon statewide reports of crops ruined by frosts, of increased labor costs and additional expenses necessitated by new regulations of the New York city board of health. All these factors contributed toward a material increase in costs of production for all dairymen.

The proposal for changing the system of fixing the price of milk used in cheese manufacture, the delegates decided, was necessary to eliminate criticism from some quarters against the present method and to establish a fair and equitable system based upon actual sales prices of cheese in this milk shed rather than upon quotations offered by dealers in widely separated sections of the country.

The agency suggestion for an amendment providing ten day payments by dealers into the producers settlement fund is a renewal of a similar suggestion made at the public hearings on the market order last March, for the protection of producers.

The skim milk differential, originally proposed by the Bargaining Agency at the last hearing, has been found after experience to be one of the provisions in the order where prices could be increased. Therefore, after scientific investigation of the market, the Bargaining Agency has, by the addition of skim milk powder for human consumption to the classifications, brought about a proposal that should prove of benefit to producers. This, together with the proposed cheese diversion change, is intended to carry out the Barganing Agency's policy to obtain higher prices for producers by increasing surplus prices wherever that can be done without losing the market.

Evidence Prepared

Immediately after adoption of the resolutions the agency's legal committee plunged into the task of preparing evidence to substantiate their claims as to why all of these recommendations should be approved by the federal government and incorporated into the market order governing the sale of milk in the metropolitan area.

"These suggestions for the revision of the order, declared Ralph C. Norton, president of the agency, "are being submitted to the federal and state governments after exhaustive investigation by the agency into conditions in our milk shed as they exist today.

"We know that all of them will be given fair and careful consideration as our suggestions have been given in the past and we are sure that the evidence we will present will result in greater benefits to our 43,000 members.

"Never before have I seen our dairymen so united and so anxious to co-operate as they are at the present time. All of them realize what the order has accomplished and are confident that by proceeding in this legal, orderly way, even greater beneficial results can be attained for themselves and dealers alike."

Profits Tax Bill Creates Interest

Provisions of Measure Are Studied by Analysts

Much interest is centering just now in the provisions of the excess profits tax bill which was finally approved Sunday by the House-Senate conference committee. Analysis of the provisions of the bill indicates that the invested capital plan of computing profits—one of two alternative plans—will be of considerable benefit to those corporations which had poor earnings during recent years.

Only corporations which earned less than eight per cent on capital during those years will use this plan. Others will prefer the average earnings method, where credits amount to the average realized during the four base period years, 1936-39, reduced by five per cent.

U. S. Steel is one of the corporations expected to benefit by the invested capital method and apparently can make substantial increase over earnings for any recent year without having excess profits under the terms of the bill. However, industry's total tax bill this year will be increased considerably by the increase in the normal tax rate provided for in the measure. One industry, which will be hit particularly hard this year is aircraft manufacturing, as sales and earnings have increased sharply.

Car service division of the Association of American Railroads recommends that the railroads of the nation purchase approximately 100,000 new freight cars during the next 12 months. Recommendation is based on a recent survey of prospective equipment needs, both for commercial demands and for the expanding defense program.

August net operating income of Class I railroads totaled $66,014,798 compared with $54,567,356 in August last year.

Steel operations for the week beginning September 30 are scheduled at 92.6 per cent of capacity vs. 92.5 per cent in preceding week.

American Woolen Co. advanced prices on woolen and worsted goods five cents a yard and on tropical and blended lines two and a half cents a yard.

Stocks moved a little higher Monday. Volume continued low, total being 403,070 shares. The Dow-Jones industrials moved up .32 point, to close at 132.64; rails gained .12, to 28.52, and utilities advanced .04, to 21.69.

American woolen issues were strong on announcement of another price advance. The preferred issue was among the list of 15 most active stocks and moved up three points, while the common gained a half. Pressed Steel Car led the active list, up ½ on turnover of 11,000 shares. Pullman was active and gained 1½, as was American Car & Foundry, up 1⅜.

September was a poor month for the brokers, although better than July and August. Total volume for the month was 11,940,210 shares, compared with 57,091,430 shares in September, 1939.

Commodities resumed the advance in progress at the close of last week and the index gained 0.19 point Monday, to 53.42, best level since last June. Wool tops feature the advance, gaining six to 26 points. Sugar prices strengthened, closing with gains of two to three points. Raw sugars held firm on a basis of 2.75 cents a pound and upward. Wheat was irregular and closed unchanged to up ⅝ cent a bushel. Cotton also was irregular. October contracts closing four points lower, while the rest of the list was one higher to one lower.

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—Buying of steels, rails and specialties touched off a general rallying swing in today's stock market.

Traders were unable to resist profit taking, however, and, near the final hour, early gains of one to three points were reduced in the majority of instances.

Mr. Volk, who for many years was a baker employed in the Salzmann Bakery, was a lifelong resident of Kingston. A son of the late Frank and Mary Recktenwald Volk, he was widely known throughout this section and was rightly regarded for his pleasing and engaging personality. A member of St. Peter's Church for many years, a requiem high Mass will be offered there for the repose of his soul on Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The funeral will leave his late home on Crane street at 9 a. m. Burial will take place in the family plot in St. Peter's Cemetery. This morning at 10 o'clock a solemn high Mass of requiem was offered in St. Mary's Church for the repose of the soul of Michael J. Powers, executive officer of the Ulster County Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. The celebrant of the Mass was the Rev. Benjamin C. Roth, the deacon, the Rev. Peter J. Fox, and the subdeacon, the Rev. Joseph C. Connor. The church was filled by his relatives, friends, neighbors and business men of this community who came to pay their respects to his memory. The children's choir sang the responses during the Mass and at the conclusion sang the "Misereri." During the time the body reposed in the Jenson and Deegan Funeral Home at 15 Downs street, hundreds of people called to offer words of sympathy to the members of the family. On Sunday evening a large delegation of the St. Mary's Holy Name Society, led by Father Roth, recited the rosary for the happy repose of his soul. The Rev. Warren Hughes of Sawkill, Fathers Drury and Connor of St. Mary's also visited the chapel. Monday evening at 9 o'clock the members of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, were led also in the recitation of the rosary by Grand Knight William A. Kelly. The interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, where the final absolution was given by the Rev. Father Connor.

Stanley and the Revs. William H. Kennedy, J. C. Connor and Benjamin C. Roth. St. Mary's children's choir was assisted by Thomas Dolan, who acted as soloist during and after the Mass. Outstanding in a sentimental way, among the beautiful floral pieces which formed a bower around the casket, was the nosegay of sweetheart roses to their beloved "Bussy," from his two small sons, Jerry and Billy. Numerous spiritual bouquets were also placed on the casket. At 7:30 Monday evening, a large delegation of the New York Telephone Co., from the Kingston office and surrounding territory, visited the home to pay their last respects to their departed fellow employe and this morning they acted as an honorary escort at the funeral. U. S. Legation Protests Saratoga Man's Arrest

Bucharest, Ont. 1 (AP).—The United States legation filed a strong protest with the Rumanian government today over the arrest and mistreatment of H. L. Freeman, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., oil man.

The note spoke of the "illegality" of his arrest and reported beating by iron guardists and demanded full satisfaction.

Freeman was arrested last week in the investigation into an alleged plot to sabotage oil wells. He denied implication and declared he had been beaten at iron guard headquarters before police took him into custody.

The legation obtained Freeman's release.

invoke a state prison sentence at this term. Paul Yocan, local dance instructor, was given from three to six years last week on his plea of guilty to sodomy.

Conner Is Sentenced

Raymond Conner of Rochester Center, 37 years old, was sentenced to a term of from one to two years at Clinton State Prison on his plea of guilty to burglary, third degree, but he received a suspension of the sentence during good behavior and was placed on probation. Conner, with Robert Allen and Carl Churchill, were indicted for breaking into chicken coops. The other two had previously appeared in court. Conner has been in jail since last April and District Attorney Haver told the court that he believed the defendant had been sufficiently punished and he recommended a suspension of sentence. On his recommendation the court imposed the prison sentence and then suspended it.

Arthur DuVall, 29, of Katsbaan, who was indicted for arson for the burning of a haystack at Eavesport, pleaded guilty to malicious mischief and that plea was acceptable to the court and he was given six months in the county jail but the serving of the sentence was suspended during good behavior. DuVall was represented by Francis Martocci and was directed to report to Probation Officer Service.

District Attorney N. LeVan Haver asked the court to recess until later in the month in order that additional defendants might be presented before the court. William James is awaiting sentence on a plea of guilty to burglary but he will not be sentenced until a check-up is made to determine whether he is a third or fourth offender.

Judge Cook recessed the court until 10 o'clock on October 14.

Legion Boxing Is Planned to Start On October 18

Committee Hopes to Run Show Every Two Weeks; Officials Expect to Have A.A.U. Help

The first amateur boxing show sponsored by the American Legion under the direction of the committee appointed by Jerry Martin, new commander of Kingston Post, will be held Friday night, October 18, according to plans completed last night.

With Ed Coughlin, athletic officer of the post, in charge, supported by the special committee on boxing, the Legion hopes to run shows in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium every two weeks, beginning on the 18th of this month.

Legionnaire Coughlin, a familiar figure in local athletic circles, said after last night's meeting that application had been made to the Adirondack Division of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, for a boxing sanction. "As soon as permission is granted, the card of bouts will be arranged," he told a reporter.

Will Be Checked

"It is my intention," he added, "to have every match checked thoroughly before it becomes a part of the fistic shows to be offered by the Legion, in order that the fans may be assured of the best in ring contests."

Ben M. Becker, physical director of Schuyler High School, Albany, and chairman of boxing for the Adirondack A. A. U., expressed great interest in the Legion's move to sponsor boxing in Kingston, and his attitude indicated that the sanction would be granted immediately. "With the American Legion in back of the sport it should thrive and produce some champions from Ulster county," he said.

Attending last night's meeting, presided over by Athletic Officer Coughlin, were Commander Jerry Martin, Stanley Dempsey, Kingston Post activities chairman; Morton Finch, Andrew J. Murphy, Joe Sills, Lester Elmendorf, all past commanders of the Legion, and Arthur Fox and John Janakis, prominent Legionnaires.

U. S. Legation Protests Saratoga Man's Arrest

Bucharest, Oct. 1 (AP).—The United States legation filed a strong protest with the Rumanian government today over the arrest and mistreatment of H. L. Freeman, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., oil man.

The note spoke of the "illegality" of his arrest and reported beating by iron guardists and demanded full satisfaction.

Freeman was arrested last week in the investigation into an alleged plot to sabotage oil wells. He denied implication and declared he had been beaten at iron guard headquarters before police took him into custody.

The legation obtained Freeman's release.

invoke a state prison sentence at this term. Paul Yocan, local dance instructor, was given from three to six years last week on his plea of guilty to sodomy.

Conner Is Sentenced

Raymond Conner of Rochester Center, 37 years old, was sentenced to a term of from one to two years at Clinton State Prison on his plea of guilty to burglary, third degree, but he received a suspension of the sentence during good behavior and was placed on probation. Conner, with Robert Allen and Carl Churchill, were indicted for breaking into chicken coops. The other two had previously appeared in court. Conner has been in jail since last April and District Attorney Haver told the court that he believed the defendant had been sufficiently punished and he recommended a suspension of sentence. On his recommendation the court imposed the prison sentence and then suspended it.

Arthur DuVall, 29, of Katsbaan, who was indicted for arson for the burning of a haystack at Eavesport, pleaded guilty to malicious mischief and that plea was acceptable to the court and he was given six months in the county jail but the serving of the sentence was suspended during good behavior. DuVall was represented by Francis Martocci and was directed to report to Probation Officer Service.

District Attorney N. LeVan Haver asked the court to recess until later in the month in order that additional defendants might be presented before the court. William James is awaiting sentence on a plea of guilty to burglary but he will not be sentenced until a check-up is made to determine whether he is a third or fourth offender.

Judge Cook recessed the court until 10 o'clock on October 14.

Legion Boxing Is Planned to Start On October 18

Committee Hopes to Run Show Every Two Weeks; Officials Expect to Have A.A.U. Help

The first amateur boxing show sponsored by the American Legion under the direction of the committee appointed by Jerry Martin, new commander of Kingston Post, will be held Friday night, October 18, according to plans completed last night.

With Ed Coughlin, athletic officer of the post, in charge, supported by the special committee on boxing, the Legion hopes to run shows in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium every two weeks, beginning on the 18th of this month.

Legionnaire Coughlin, a familiar figure in local athletic circles, said after last night's meeting that application had been made to the Adirondack Division of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, for a boxing sanction. "As soon as permission is granted, the card of bouts will be arranged," he told a reporter.

Will Be Checked

"It is my intention," he added, "to have every match checked thoroughly before it becomes a part of the fistic shows to be offered by the Legion, in order that the fans may be assured of the best in ring contests."

Ben M. Becker, physical director of Schuyler High School, Albany, and chairman of boxing for the Adirondack A. A. U., expressed great interest in the Legion's move to sponsor boxing in Kingston, and his attitude indicated that the sanction would be granted immediately. "With the American Legion in back of the sport it should thrive and produce some champions from Ulster county," he said.

Attending last night's meeting, presided over by Athletic Officer Coughlin, were Commander Jerry Martin, Stanley Dempsey, Kingston Post activities chairman; Morton Finch, Andrew J. Murphy, Joe Sills, Lester Elmendorf, all past commanders of the Legion, and Arthur Fox and John Janakis, prominent Legionnaires.

eds Are Popular Choice To Beat Tigers in Series

pires See Cincy Team Very Tough; Paul Derringer and Buck Newson to Start

Cincinnati, Oct. 1 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds of the National League and the Detroit Tigers of the American, a couple of worthy champions, will pile into each other before a jam-packed crowd of 33,000 at Crosley Field here tomorrow in the opening game of the 1940 World Series.

They will battle for two days here, shift to Detroit for three more shots at each other, not stopping for a day of rest, and then roll back here next Monday to settle the argument.

The title is settled by four out of seven, and most of those who follow baseball think the Reds and the Tigers are likely to go the limit. They appear to be evenly matched—Cincinnati's tight pitching against Detroit's distance hitting. Though it is far from conclusive, the most popular opinion is that the Reds are due to give the National League its first championship since 1934.

It is difficult to say why the Reds are a popular choice. Perhaps sentiment has much to do with it. They took a quick, though gallant, beating from the New York Yankees a year ago. They recovered from that licking, which was almost humiliating toward the last, to come back and capture their league bunting again by a margin that left no doubt.

Two National League umpires, encountered in a local hotel lobby last night, reflected the feeling about Manager Bill McKechnie's outfit:

Hard to Beat

"You're crazy if you bet against those boys," said one, while his companion nodded agreement. "They're tough, and I've umpired long enough to know. Maybe they look crippled right now, with Lombardi and Frey limping around. Maybe some bookmaker is offering odds against them. But don't let that fool you. These Reds are very hard to beat as long as they have a couple of fellows like Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters serving up that apple."

The Detroiters, still flushed and feeling great from the welcome accorded them by their hometown supporters two nights ago, pulled into town last evening. They received a pleasant, though not effusive welcome, for Cincinnati's fans are prejudiced at the moment. Both clubs were scheduled to work out at Crosley Field this afternoon.

Neither pilot last night would name his starting pitcher. Manager McKechnie of the Reds said that Derringer and Walters would divide the first two games. Everyone knew that all along, and the best guess is that Derringer will be wheeling them across for Hank Greenberg and Rudy York and the other Tigers to hit at when the main shooting starts at 1:30 (E. S. T.) tomorrow. Pilot Del Baker of the Tigers said it would be either Schoolboy Rowe or Buck Newsom on the hill, and the general opinion was that it would be Newsom.

Help, Help!

Johnny Law, the old Notre Dame star, now is recreation director at Wallkill prison, Wallkill, N. Y. . . . He's asking his old friends among coaches to send him one complete uniform with two or three games left in it. . . . Also, any other old paraphernalia, such as balls, etc. . . . Now is the time for Johnny's pals to get busy.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

Cincinnati, Oct. 1 (AP)—This fine old city is baseball crazier than it was when we shoved in a year ago. . . . Mebbe it's because the Reds haven't already lost a pair to the Yanks. . . . At any rate, if the fever is any worse when we move on to Detroit, we're going to head for the nearest storm shelter and stay there for the duration. . . . Even the sober-faced Deacon Bill McKechnie is going around wisecracking (the Deacon wasn't feeling so pert when he brought the boys home after those first two games in New York last year). . . . There is a feeling around town the Reds are going to take the series in five or six games and the feeling isn't based on the fact the Tiger pitchers are whipped down, either. . . . James J. Carroll, the big St. Louis bookie, is here quoting the Tigers 2-3 favorites and stands to clean up a fortune if the Reds drop out again.

Today's Guest Star

When Tom Stidham ordered secret practice for his Oklahoma U. gridders, Sports Editor Head quipped in the Bartlesville (Okla.) Enterprise:

Sweethearts, sisters, cousins—
Stidham bans 'em by the dozens.

Extra, Extra!

Billy Kelly, veteran sports editor of the Buffalo Courier-Express, may have scored a nation-wide beat if what he wrote the other day pans out—that Detroit may swap Buck Newsom during the winter because some of the Tigers fans have soured on some of his antics. . . . "Hurry Up" Yost, Michigan's grand old man, was head guest at 12 or 13 functions while the Wolverine squad was on the coast. . . . Coach Jack Meagher of Auburn got the scare of his life the other day when Bob Flournoy, classy halfback, went up in a plane and had to make a forced landing when his gas ran out. . . . The main idea out here right now is try to get a hotel room.

Kennel Club

Note to Messrs. Red Dawson and Ray Wolf: You'll have plenty of company in the football doghouse this week-end. . . . Glenn Cunningham, who has gone in for longer distances, probably will run in the Sugar Bowl two-mile. . . . Thirteen members of the Wisconsin grid squad play musical instruments and if Coach Harry Suhldreher can find himself a drummer, he can start a swing band in case the going gets too tough. . . . Disgusted Dept.: Marvin Cress of the Spencer (N. C.) High, made two touchdown runs of 98 and 85 yards vs. Winston-Salem the other day, but both times he was called back by "that man." . . . Mel Allen, who aired the Giant-Yankee games this season, had better look to his laurels. . . . Young Jack Slocum, son of Bill, the old sports writer, filled in for Mel the other day and the fan telegrams were terrific.

Percentage, .333

As Charles Turner of Columbia, Mo., points out, if only Taft and the Indians had come through along with the Reds, wouldn't Ohio have had one hell of a year.

Armstrong Won't Be Recognized by Maryland Board

Commission Leader Says Action Was Directed Against New York Boxing Monopoly

Baltimore, Oct. 1 (AP)—Asserting that it was "time to stop the tieing up of boxers and smash monopolies," the Maryland state boxing commission declared Henry Armstrong's welterweight championship vacant today.

Stanley Scherr, commission chairman, said the move was directed against the "New York boxing monopoly" in general, and that by taking this stand Maryland became the first state to oppose the "powers that be."

The action came, Scherr declared, after he had been advised by Eddie Mead, Armstrong's manager, that the titleholder could not fight anywhere without the consent of Promoter Mike Jacobs of New York.

Efforts had been made to match Armstrong, Los Angeles negro, with the winner of the October 14 bout here between Louis (Kid) Cocoa of New Haven, Conn., and Izzy Janazzo of New York.

Scherr said Mead told him he would demand $25,000 for such a match if Jacobs would consent, but that the promoter would not permit the champion to meet Cocoa.

"If Armstrong intends to limit his fights to second and third raters, there is no reason why Maryland should recognize him," Scherr said. "Cocoa is rated No. 1 challenger and Janazzo No. 3, and the winner is certainly entitled to consideration.

"Maryland will recognize the Cocoa-Janazzo bout, scheduled for the 15-round title distance, as a championship event."

Sport Fan Will Keep Tom Maines In Eyes of Public

Syracuse Man Offers His Services to Keep Fans Posted on Activities of Kingston Youth

1024 Lancaster Ave., Syracuse
September 27, 1940.

Sports Editor, Kingston Daily Freeman, Kingston, N. Y.

Sports Editor:

Following is a write-up of the activities of Tommy Maines of Kingston in the Syracuse-Clarkson Tech. game which took place in the Archbold Stadium here Friday. I am taking it upon myself to keep you posted as to his progress for the interest of his friends in Kingston. I would sincerely appreciate it if you could take special pains to keep him before your sports public.

"As Maines goes, so goes Syracuse" is the slogan that has been circulating on the hill this past week at Syracuse University. And tonight this was proved to be true, for Tommy Maines proved himself to be an A-1 fullback. His number, 17, could always be seen blocking or tackling, in perfect form, several of the Clarkson Tech. players.

With six minutes to go before the half, Maines was injured slightly in the right leg. This was caused by a smashing tackle in which Tommy ended on the bottom of the heap. He was unable to play the rest of the game.

Maines is a sophomore at Syracuse, one of the only two men of '43 on the Varsity Eleven. His first year showed great progress on the frosh squad and Coach Ossie Solem slated him for a position on the Orange team. He's doing okay, so watch Maines this year—he'll carry the Orange to victory!

(Just received word that the coach stated that Tommy Maines is the fastest, most natural ball player the Orange ever had.)

Very truly yours,
STEVE RYDER.

PUNTS AND PASSES

(By The Associated Press)

Ann Arbor, Mich.—You can take it from Michigan's football players this business of flying to distant games isn't quite what it's cracked up to be, even though it may have helped the Wolverines in their conquest of California last Saturday. Instead of loafing comfortably on a train yesterday, they were back on the practice field for a stiff workout as Coach Fritz Crisler told them, "our blocking in that game was excellent, but we want to keep it that way."

Latrobe, Pa.—The best way of describing the state of local football fans is that they're "popeyed over Popovich." For a 148-pound Johnny Popovich and his running mate in the St. Vincent College backfield, Dick Detzel, put on such a show in the Bearcats' first game this season that they've made the fans almost forget such former heroes as Harry Johnson and Walt Strosser, who were considered some punkins as small college players.

Shreveport, La.—The centenary gentlemen can claim a record of some sort, at least for their section, as football travelers. They played Texas Christian at Fort Worth last Saturday, go to Houston to meet Rice this week, then after a home game against St. Louis University, they travel to Tucson to face Arizona. Other "road" games this season include Washington University at St. Louis, Southwestern at Memphis and Texas Tech at Lubbock.

Provo, Utah—Utah, one of the few western states that never has gone for night football in a big way, is falling in line. The first flood-lighted game in the history of the state was played last Friday between Brigham Young and Nevada. Utah University and Utah State are not equipped for night games.

Ithaca, N. Y.—The Cornell-Ohio State game here October 26 is a sellout a month before it will be played and that's an indication of the great battle the fans are expecting between these high ranking teams of the east and midwest. Because Ithaca is far from the big cities that supply most of the football customers and isn't easy to reach, Cornell seldom draws big crowds for its home games, but the athletic association announced yesterday that every one of the 31,200 seats in Schoellkopf Crescent and the bleachers had been sold.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Apparently Leo (Dutch) Meyer, the Texas Christian coach, figures the way to find a good end is to look for a fullback. Both the T. C. U. first string flankmen are converted fullbacks. Connie Sparks was Switched late last season after being leading scorer and all-conference fullback in 1938 and Phil Roach played fullback for three years in high school.

Minneapolis—You've probably read about football "machines"—usually teams that produced the same results as a tank corps when they went into action, but Minnesota actually is using a football machine on the practice field. It's a mechanically controlled canvas dummy that registers the push behind each lineman's charge and can be regulated so as to offer as much opposition as the coach desires.

Hamilton, N. Y.—Colgate's football team isn't alone this week in working to get ready for Saturday's big game with Cornell. While the varsity scrimmaged yesterday, the band also started workouts and the student body held cheering practice.

Ed Coughlin Will Sponsor Pin Team

Bowlers of Barn Team to Be Known as Kendalls

Captain Charlie Tiano has announced that Ed Coughlin will sponsor the former Barn bowling team during the coming season. The team will be known as the Kendalls.

The ex-Barn keglers have won the city championship two straight years. The Kendalls will roll in the Central Major League every Thursday night. In addition the usual quota of exhibition contests are being scheduled for Saturday nights. As in the past years the keglers will play hosts to such nationally known squads as the Pabst Blue Ribbons, Joe Falcaro's Schlitz, New York Rangers and the Fisher Body of Tarrytown.

The roster for the Kendalls will include Fred Rice, Marty Kellenberger, Harold Broskie, Charlie Tiano and Bob Hanley. Johnny Ferraro was a member of the team last season.

Samsonville Wins

With John Crispell and "Red" Miller hurling good ball Samsonville emerged a 5 to 2 victor over Olive Bridge Sunday afternoon. There will be a return game at Olive Bridge Sunday afternoon.

Tom Maines Is Leading Hitter; Celuch Follows

Bobbie Bush Turns in Best Pitching Performances; Schatzel Leads Recs in Runs Batted In With 20

As far as this section is concerned King Baseball has vacated his throne for the entrance of football. But before the bats, balls and exciting thrills of the diamond sport are put away a look at the records of the Kingston Recreations is in store.

First of all the Recreations played in 27 games this season and won 14 of them. Bob Bush and Charlie were the main flingers with six victories apiece. Both flingers dropped four decisions. Howie Brooks and Al Gruner picked up one victory apiece. Brooks lost three games while Gruner and O'Brien were charged with one loss. In those 27 games the Recs scored 106 runs while the opponents were scoring 131.

Back to the pitching staff again Bob Bush displayed the best control of any pitcher. Pitching 104 innings the rotund flinger gave up only 15 free tickets to first. Charlie Neff walked 45, Brooks 10 and Gruner 6. Charlie Neff just managed to nip Bush in the strikeout column with 70. Bob had 69. Brooks fanned 18 and Gruner had three.

Bush Was Effective

In his 104 innings of work Bush allowed 69 hits. Neff was conked for 68 in 78 1/3 innings. Howie Brooks was tagged for 38 hits in 32 2/3 innings, O'Brien 11 in 9 and Gruner 12 in 9.

Jack Schatzel topped the men of Carlie Husta in the runs batted in department with 20. Following are the complete total: Schatzel 20, Maines 19, Tiano 18, Celuch 15, Thomas 12, Zadany 12, McLean 12, Smedes 11, Van Derzee 6, Neff 6, Bush 5, and Brooks 2.

George "Red" McLean and Tommy Maines proved to be the best base stealers on the squad. George stole seven bases and Tommy had six to his credit. Mac Tiano picked up four, Zadany three. Thomas, Smedes and Van Derzee had two apiece. Stoll, Celuch and Schatzel pilfered one each.

In the extra base hits department Tommy Maines led the pack with four homers. Tiano, Celuch, McLean, Schatzel, Smedes and Thomas each socked one round-tripper. Maines and Celuch were tied with four triples. Mac Tiano had three. Bush and Smedes poled out two triples. Neff, Thomas and McLean racked up one three-bagger. George Zadany and Jack Schatzel took honors with two baggers, the former cracking out eight and the latter five. Mac Tiano had four. Celuch, McLean, Smedes, Maines, Thomas and Neff had two apiece. Bush, Van Derzee and Brooks had one double.

Many Errors

A lot of Kingston losses were due to men left on bases. In 27 games Kingston left a total of 200 men on the paths. Kingston also committed 76 errors. The Recs pounded out 231 hits, the same number as the opponents. Carlie Husta's club pulled off 16 double plays this season. VanDerzee-McLean to Schatzel completed three while Neff-VanDerzee-Schatzel had two and McLean-VanDerzee-Schatzel worked two.

Tommy Maines and Andy Celuch were the leading hitters of the club with averages of .363 and .336. Vince Stoll, at bat only eight times, hit .375. Bob Bush was the other .300 hitter with .308.

Following are the complete averages for the season:

	AB	R	H	Avg.
Stoll	8	2	3	.375
Maines	77	7	28	.363
Celuch	98	21	33	.336

Baker Signs Contract

Although no salary figure has been announced, Owner Walter O. Briggs of the Detroit Tigers, winners of the American League title, announced that Manager Del Baker has signed for the 1941 season. The Bengal pilot succeeded Mickey Cochrane during the mid-summer of 1938 and has been at the helm since.

eds Are Popular Choice To Beat Tigers in Series

pires See Cincy Team Very Tough; Paul Derringer and Buck Newson to Start

Cincinnati, Oct. 1 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds of the National League and the Detroit Tigers of the American, a couple of worthy champions, will pile into each other before a jam-packed crowd of 33,000 at Crosley Field here tomorrow in the opening game of the 1940 World Series.

They will battle for two days here, shift to Detroit for three more shots at each other, not stopping for a day of rest, and then roll back here next Monday to settle the argument.

The title is settled by four out of seven, and most of those who follow baseball think the Reds and the Tigers are likely to go the limit. They appear to be evenly matched—Cincinnati's tight pitching against Detroit's distance hitting. Though it is far from conclusive, the most popular opinion is that the Reds are due to give the National League its first championship since 1934.

It is difficult to say why the Reds are a popular choice. Perhaps sentiment has much to do with it. They took a quick, though gallant, beating from the New York Yankees a year ago. They recovered from that licking, which was almost humiliating toward the last, to come back and capture their league bunting again by a margin that left no doubt.

Two National League umpires, encountered in a local hotel lobby last night, reflected the feeling about Manager Bill McKechnie's outfit:

Hard to Beat

"You're crazy if you bet against those boys," said one, while his companion nodded agreement. "They're tough, and I've umpired long enough to know. Maybe they look crippled right now, with Lombardi and Frey limping around. Maybe some bookmaker is offering odds against them. But don't let that fool you. These Reds are very hard to beat as long as they have a couple of fellows like Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters serving up that apple."

The Detroiters, still flushed and feeling great from the welcome accorded them by their hometown supporters two nights ago, pulled into town last evening. They received a pleasant, though not effusive welcome, for Cincinnati's fans are prejudiced at the moment. Both clubs were scheduled to work out at Crosley Field this afternoon.

Neither pilot last night would name his starting pitcher. Manager McKechnie of the Reds said that Derringer and Walters would divide the first two games. Everyone knew that all along, and the best guess is that Derringer will be wheeling them across for Hank Greenberg and Rudy York and the other Tigers to hit at when the main shooting starts at 1:30 (E. S. T.) tomorrow. Pilot Del Baker of the Tigers said it would be either Schoolboy Rowe or Buck Newsom on the hill, and the general opinion was that it would be Newsom.

Help, Help!

Johnny Law, the old Notre Dame star, now is recreation director at Wallkill prison, Wallkill, N. Y. . . . Now is the time for Johnny's pals to get busy.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

Cincinnati, Oct. 1 (AP)—This fine old city is baseball crazier than it was when we shoved in a year ago. . . . Mebbe it's because the Reds haven't already lost a pair to the Yanks. . . . At any rate, if the fever is any worse when we move on to Detroit, we're going to head for the nearest storm shelter and stay there for the duration. . . . Even the sober-faced Deacon Bill McKechnie is going around wise cracking (the Deacon wasn't feeling so pert when he brought the boys home after those first two games in New York last year). . . . There is a feeling around town the Reds are going to take the series in five or six games and the feeling isn't based on the fact the Tiger pitchers are whipped down, either. . . . James J. Carroll, the big St. Louis bookie, is here quoting the Tigers 2-3 favorites and stands to clean up a fortune if the Reds drop out again.

Today's Guest Star

When Tom Stidham ordered secret practice for his Oklahoma U. gridders, Sports Editor Head quipped in the Bartlesville (Okla.) Enterprise:

Sweethearts, sisters, cousins—
Stidham bans 'em by the dozens.

Extra, Extra!

Billy Kelly, veteran sports editor of the Buffalo Courier-Express, may have scored a nation-wide beat if what he wrote the other day pans out—that Detroit may swap Buck Newsom during the winter because some of the Tigers fans have soured on some of his antics. . . . "Hurry Up" Yost, Michigan's grand old man, was head guest at 12 or 13 functions while the Wolverine squad was on the coast. . . . . Coach Jack Meagher of Auburn got the scare of his life the other day when Bob Flournoy, classy halfback, went up in a plane and had to make a forced landing when his gas ran out. . . . The main idea out here right now is try to get a hotel room.

Kennel Club

Note to Messrs. Red Dawson and Ray Wolf: You'll have plenty of company in the football doghouse this week-end. . . . Glenn Cunningham, who has gone in for longer distances, probably will run in the Sugar Bowl two-mile. . . . Thirteen members of the Wisconsin grid squad play musical instruments and if Coach Harry Suhldreher can find himself a drummer, he can start a swing band in case the going gets too tough. . . . Disgusted Dept.: Marvin Cress of the Spencer (N. C.) High, made two touchdown runs of 98 and 85 yards vs. Winston-Salem the other day, but both times he was called back by "that man." . . . Mel Allen, who aired the Giant-Yankee games this season, had better look to his laurels. . . . Young Jack Slocum, son of Bill, the old sports writer, filled in for Mel the other day and the fan telegrams were terrific.

As Charles Turner of Columbia, Mo., points out, if only Taft and the Indians had come through along with the Reds, wouldn't Ohio have had one hell of a year.

Armstrong Won't Be Recognized by Maryland Board

Commission Leader Says Action Was Directed Against New York Boxing Monopoly

Baltimore, Oct. 1 (AP)—Asserting that it was "time to stop the tieing up of boxers and smash monopolies," the Maryland state boxing commission declared Henry Armstrong's welterweight championship vacant today.

Stanley Scherr, commission chairman, said the move was directed against the "New York boxing monopoly" in general, and that by taking this stand Maryland became the first state to oppose the "powers that be."

The action came, Scherr declared, after he had been advised by Eddie Mead, Armstrong's manager, that the titleholder could not fight anywhere without the consent of Promoter Mike Jacobs of New York.

Efforts had been made to match Armstrong, Los Angeles negro, with the winner of the October 14 bout here between Louis (Kid) Cocoa of New Haven, Conn., and Izzy Janazzo of New York.

Scherr said Mead told him he would demand $25,000 for such a match if Jacobs would consent, but that the promoter would not permit the champion to meet Cocoa.

"If Armstrong intends to limit his fights to second and third raters, there is no reason why Maryland should recognize him," Scherr said. "Cocoa is rated No. 1 challenger and Janazzo No. 3, and the winner is certainly entitled to consideration.

"Maryland will recognize the Cocoa-Janazzo bout, scheduled for the 15-round title distance, as a championship event."

Sport Fan Will Keep Tom Maines In Eyes of Public

Syracuse Man Offers His Services to Keep Fans Posted on Activities of Kingston Youth

1024 Lancaster Ave., Syracuse
September 27, 1940.

Sports Editor, Kingston Daily Freeman, Kingston, N. Y.

Sports Editor:

Following is a write-up of the activities of Tommy Maines of Kingston in the Syracuse-Clarkson Tech. game which took place in the Archbold Stadium here Friday. I am taking it upon myself to keep you posted as to his progress for the interest of his friends in Kingston. I would sincerely appreciate it if you could take special pains to keep him before your sports public.

"As Maines goes, so goes Syracuse" is the slogan that has been circulating on the hill this past week at Syracuse University. And tonight this was proved to be true, for Tommy Maines proved himself to be an A-1 fullback. His number, 17, could always be seen blocking or tackling, in perfect form, several of the Clarkson Tech. players.

With six minutes to go before the half, Maines was injured slightly in the right leg. This was caused by a smashing tackle in which Tommy ended on the bottom of the heap. He was unable to play the rest of the game.

Maines is a sophomore at Syracuse, one of the only two men of '43 on the Varsity Eleven. His first year showed great progress on the frosh squad and Coach Ossie Solem slated him for a position on the Orange team. He's doing okay, so watch Maines this year—he'll carry the Orange to victory!

(Just received word that the coach stated that Tommy Maines is the fastest, most natural ball player the Orange ever had.)

Very truly yours,
STEVE RYDER.

PUNTS AND PASSES

(By The Associated Press)

Ann Arbor, Mich.—You can take it from Michigan's football players this business of flying to distant games isn't quite what it's cracked up to be, even though it may have helped the Wolverines in their conquest of California last Saturday. Instead of loafing comfortably on a train yesterday, they were back on the practice field for a stiff workout as Coach Fritz Crisler told them, "our blocking in that game was excellent, but we want to keep it that way."

Latrobe, Pa.—The best way of describing the state of local football fans is that they're "popeyed over Popovich." For 148-pound Johnny Popovich and his running mate in the St. Vincent College backfield, Dick Detzel, put on such a show in the Bearcats' first game this season that they've made the fans almost forget such former heroes as Harry Johnson and Walt Strosser, who were considered some punkins as small college players.

Shreveport, La.—The centenary gentlemen can claim a record of some sort, at least for their section, as football travelers. They played Texas Christian at Fort Worth last Saturday, go to Houston to meet Rice this week, then after a home game against St. Louis University, they travel to Tucson to face Arizona. Other "road" games this season include Washington University at St. Louis, Southwestern at Memphis and Texas Tech at Lubbock.

Provo, Utah—Utah, one of the few western states that never has gone for night football in a big way, is falling in line. The first flood-lighted game in the history of the state was played last Friday between Brigham Young and Nevada. Utah University and Utah State are not equipped for night games.

Ithaca, N. Y.—The Cornell-Ohio State game here October 26 is a sellout a month before it will be played and that's an indication of the great battle the fans are expecting between these high ranking teams of the east and midwest. Because Ithaca is far from the big cities that supply most of the football customers and isn't easy to reach, Cornell seldom draws big crowds for its home games, but the athletic association announced yesterday that every one of the 31,200 seats in Schoellkopf Crescent and the bleachers had been sold.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Apparently Leo (Dutch) Meyer, the Texas Christian coach, figures the way to find a good end is to look for a fullback. Both the T. C. U. first string flankmen are converted fullbacks. Connie Sparks was Switched late last season after being leading scorer and all-conference fullback in 1938 and Phil Roach played fullback for three years in high school.

Minneapolis — You've probably read about football "machines"—usually teams that produced the same results as a tank corps when they went into action, but Minnesota actually is using a football machine on the practice field. It's a mechanically controlled canvas dummy that registers the push behind each lineman's charge and can be regulated so as to offer as much opposition as the coach desires.

Hamilton, N. Y.—Colgate's football team isn't alone this week in working to get ready for Saturday's big game with Cornell. While the varsity scrimmaged yesterday, the band also started workouts and the student body held cheering practice.

Ed Coughlin Will Sponsor Pin Team

Bowlers of Barn Team to Be Known as Kendalls

Captain Charlie Tiano has announced that Ed Coughlin will sponsor the former Barn bowling team during the coming season. The team will be known as the Kendalls.

The ex-Barn keglers have won the city championship two straight years. The Kendalls will roll in the Central Major League every Thursday night. In addition the usual quota of exhibition contests are being scheduled for Saturday nights. As in the past years the keglers will play hosts to such nationally known squads as the Pabst Blue Ribbons, Joe Falcaro's Schlitz, New York Rangers and the Fisher Body of Tarrytown.

The roster for the Kendalls will include Fred Rice, Marty Kellenberger, Harold Broskie, Charlie Tiano and Bob Hanley. Johnny Ferraro was a member of the team last season.

Samsonville Wins

With John Crispell and "Red" Miller hurling good ball Samsonville emerged a 5 to 2 victor over Olive Bridge Sunday afternoon. There will be a return game at Olive Bridge Sunday afternoon.

Tom Maines Is Leading Hitter; Celuch Follows

Bobbie Bush Turns in Best Pitching Performances; Schatzel Leads Recs in Runs Batted In With 20

As far as this section is concerned King Baseball has vacated his throne for the entrance of football. But before the bats, balls and exciting thrills of the diamond sport are put away a look at the records of the Kingston Recreations is in store.

First of all the Recreations played in 27 games this season and won 14 of them. Bob Bush and Charlie were the main flingers with six victories apiece. Both flingers dropped four decisions. Howie Brooks and Al Gruner picked up one victory apiece. Brooks lost three games while Gruner and O'Brien were charged with one loss. In those 27 games the Recs scored 106 runs while the opponents were scoring 131.

Back to the pitching staff again Bob Bush displayed the best control of any pitcher. Pitching 104 innings the rotund flinger gave up only 15 free tickets to first. Charlie Neff walked 45, Brooks 10 and Gruner 6. Charlie Neff just managed to nip Bush in the strikeout column with 70. Bob had 69. Brooks fanned 18 and Gruner had three.

Bush Was Effective

In his 104 innings of work Bush allowed 69 hits. Neff was conked for 68 in 78 1/3 innings. Howie Brooks was tagged for 38 hits in 32 2/3 innings, O'Brien 11 in 9 and Gruner 12 in 9.

Jack Schatzel topped the men of Carlie Husta in the runs batted in department with 20. Following are the complete total: Schatzel 20, Maines 19, Tiano 18, Celuch 15, Thomas 12, Zadany 12, McLean 12, Smedes 11, Van Derzee 6, Neff 6, Bush 5, and Brooks 2.

George "Red" McLean and Tommy Maines proved to be the best base stealers on the squad. George stole seven bases and Tommy had six to his credit. Mac Tiano picked up four, Zadany three. Thomas, Smedes and Van Derzee had two apiece. Stoll, Celuch and Schatzel pilfered one each.

In the extra base hits department Tommy Maines led the pack with four homers. Tiano, Celuch, McLean, Schatzel, Smedes and Thomas each socked one round-tripper. Maines and Celuch were tied with four triples. Mac Tiano had three. Bush and Smedes poled out two triples. Neff, Thomas and McLean racked up one three-bagger. George Zadany and Jack Schatzel took honors with two baggers, the former cracking out eight and the latter five. Mac Tiano had four. Celuch, McLean, Smedes, Maines, Thomas and Neff had two apiece. Bush, Van Derzee and Brooks had one double.

Many Errors

A lot of Kingston losses were due to men left on bases. In 27 games Kingston left a total of 200 men on the paths. Kingston also committed 76 errors. The Recs pounded out 231 hits, the same number as the opponents. Carlie Husta's club pulled off 16 double plays this season. VanDerzee-McLean to Schatzel completed three while Neff - VanDerzee - Schatzel had two and McLean-VanDerzee-Schatzel worked two.

Tommy Maines and Andy Celuch were the leading hitters of the club with averages of .363 and .336. Vince Stoll, at bat only eight times, hit .375. Bob Bush was the other .300 hitter with .308.

Following are the complete averages for the season:

	AB	R	H	Avg.
Stoll	8	2	3	.375
Maines	77	7	28	.363
Celuch	98	21	33	.336
Bush	39	2	12	.308
Thomas	56	12	15	.267
McLean	123	19	31	.260
Neff	43	7	11	.255
Tiano	98	11	23	.234
Zadany	113	12	26	.230
Schatzel	115	14	26	.226
Smedes	91	13	20	.219
Van Derzee	95	9	19	.200
